MEXICO'S revolutionists combine business with patriotism. One Mexican, one Spaniard, two Americans, arrested in New York, were going to Europe with $750,000 taken from banks raided in Mexico. An American court will decide on the nature of the loot. If it is war, the men arrested will keep it. If it is rebellion, the men will go to jail, and the money back to Mexico. As the men were beaten, they will probably be classed as rebels.

DOMINION-WIDE ROADS PARLEY IS UNDER WAY

Delegates From Alberta to Maritimes at Ottawa Conference

Canadian Press

OTTAWA, May 7.—Assembled for a two-day convention to discuss plans for the improvement of Canada's highways, to contemplate policies which would further protect the public and still further spread the network of roads over the dominion, some 30 delegates attended the opening session of the interprovincial conference of the Canadian Good Roads association here today.

Delegates from Alberta in the west and from Prince Edward Island in the east, representatives of railway systems and various public bodies, will spend today and tomorrow considering transportation problems generally, giving special consideration to the study of cost of construction and maintenance of highways, regulations and the advisability of seeking federal aid for provincial roads.

Motherwell, Forke to Be Attacked by Opposition

U.F.A. GROUP WILL SUPPORT CONSERVATIVES

Hon. W. R. Motherwell's Trip to Europe to Come Under Fire

BY STAFF CORRESPONDENT
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, May 7.—The minister of immigration and the minister of agriculture are next to be singled out for attack by the opposition following the sustained offensive against the postmaster-general, the Bulletin understands.

Hon. Robert Forke is to be attacked on the lack of a definite immigration policy, while Hon. W. R. Motherwell is to be subjected to a barrage on his trip to Europe last year, when he took the ministerial automobile and chauffeur along.

To Cite Results

The minister of immigration, it is believed, will defend himself by citing the results of the immigration policy, which practically followed the lines laid down by the immigration committee of parliament a year ago. There has also been consultation with the provinces as to the number of immigrants to be sent to each province.

In the attacks on the postmaster-general, the Conservative opposition has had the support of the ex-ginger group, consisting of the U. F. A. Progressives, and Labor in the southeast corner of the green chamber. As this group is opposed to immigration, however, the opposition will not gain much support, and any vote censure may result in a still higher majority against them. The two censure votes recorded against the postmaster-general gave them a defeat of 27 and 24 votes respectively.

Mr. Motherwell will probably defend his automobile trip on the grounds that it would have cost more to hire cars during his visit to Europe than to take his own car with him. Had he left his chauffeur at home, the latter's wages would have gone on just the same. The opposition will probably hold that the inclusion of the chauffeur on the trip was an extravagance.

PLANE DROPS TO KILL FIVE

Wing Crumples on French Bomber and Tragedy Follows

Associated Press

BOURGES, France, May 7.—Five military aviators were killed at the Avord aviation field last night, their bombing plane crashing to earth when a wing dropped off.

The bodies could be taken from the plane this morning only after experts had removed two unexploded bombs from the wreck of the machine.

The crash took place after a number of bombs had been launched in practice. A wing suddenly crumpled up and the plane fell at terrific speed. As it was falling a parachute became detached and witnesses were hopeful that at least one of the occupants would be saved but the parachute proved empty and it was supposed that one of the men, in desperate haste, had detached it too soon.

The victims were two pilots and three bombing students.

Barbara Pitcher's Body Is Recovered

Canadian Press

MONTREAL, May 7.—Police officials announced today that the body of the woman recovered from the Riviere Des Prairies at Ahuntsic had been identified as that of Miss Barbara Pitcher, 18-year-old first year arts student of McGill University, who disappeared from here two months ago.

Morgue officials stated that the body of Miss Pitcher gave every indication of being in the water for some time—probably since the day she was missing—and showed no marks of violence.

Identification of the body was made by J. B. Conley, chauffeur of the Pitcher family, who was in the habit of driving Miss Pitcher to and from the University.

Edmonton's Air-mindedness

The photograph by The Bulletin cameraman also illustrates the cosmopolitan character of Edmonton's rising generation. U.S. TARIFF HITS IMPORT FROM CANADA

Duty Increases in General Not as Great as Anticipated

Canadian Press

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The tariff bill was introduced in the house by Chairman Hawley of the ways and means committee at noon today. Even before it was offered, mutterings of trouble were audible. Agricultural members from the west and south declared themselves displeased with the rates on agricultural products, and said they were not high enough. Industrial members were also dissatisfied.

It was declared today that while the bill probably would be driven through the house by the Republican organization it would be radically revised and re-written in the senate.

While imports from Canada will be to some extent curtailed by the bill, the increases in general as to products largely shipped in from Canada are

TODAY'S ODDEST NEWS

EVIDENTLY HUSBAND DIDN'T BUY CLOTHES

ALTON, Ill., May 7.—Mrs. Binnie Burton probably bought her clothes with her own money. Otherwise, her darling husband wouldn't have been so eager to cut up her shoes and take her nice new underclothes.

But Binnie didn't pay for them, so he amused himself with a large knife and his wife's shoes. The little woman complained, Binnie was arrested and they went to court.

Mrs. Binnie Burton charged, wouldn't keep his home tidy and refused to cook for him. Mrs Binnie charged that she couldn't keep a stitch of clothes because of her playful mate's cutting ways.

The judge told Binnie he must replace the ruined clothes and sent the both of them home to patch up their troubles and keep the peace.

SMOKERS ARE WARNED OF DEADLY CIGARETTE

PORTLAND, Ore., May 7.—"Reach for a poison instead of a food" would be the prevalent cigarette slogan if tobacco manufacturers advertised truly," Dr. Mildred McBride said recently at First Methodist Episcopal Church, when her address on "The First Effects of Cigarettes on Women and Girls" was part of a symposium on cigarette smoking.

"Hunger is the result of contractions of the stomach muscles induced by the need of food. A cigarette will stop these contractions and take away the feeling of hunger for about fifteen minutes," said Dr. McBride. "At the end of that time one must smoke another cigarette."

EATS HIMSELF TO BRINK OF GRAVE AT BANQUETS

CHICAGO, May 7.—Speaker David E. Shanahan of the Illinois House of Representatives, has been a member of the Legislature thirty years. Since becoming Speaker years ago he has attended many dinners, banquets and luncheons. He ate himself almost into the grave. For three weeks he has been in a hospital for a stomach disorder.

He will go to a hospital in Springfield tomorrow and try to conduct the business of the House from there. He is through with banquets. He is on a special diet and must take his food in the hospital. He hopes to attend the session of the House a few hours a day.

Veteran Of War With No Country Takes Own Life

Associated Press

PRIEST RIVER, Idaho, May 7.—After writing that he was refused aid by both Canadian and United States governments, Charles Feder, a trapper and former Canadian soldier, fired a fatal bullet into his head near Bismarck Ranger station, north of here, word received today said.

In a note pinned to a tree stump the trapper said that he had been refused assistance by Canada because he had become an American citizen, and by the United States because he had served in the Canadian army. "You may call this act suicide," said the note, directed to the coroner, "but I call it deliverance." He had intimated that he had been suffering from cancer. He was buried here "with my boots on like a man" as he had requested.

ACTORS BURN IN TORONTO HOUSE FIRE

Mystery Shrouds Death of Stock Leading Lady and Director

Canadian Press

TORONTO, May 7.—Two prominent members of a local stock company, Miss Margaret Bird, 35, and Forest Cummings, 52, were burned to death in an apartment on Jarvis street early today. They were with the Victoria Stock Company of the Victoria theatre, which opened a new play last night. The cause of the fire is unknown.

After last night's performance, Miss Bird, who was second leading lady, returned to her apartment in a state of high nervous tension. Several friends dropped in to congratulate her and to talk over theatrical matters. Among them was Cummings, the director, who remained a while after the others had left, so police were informed.

Firemen were unable to force the door of the apartment and it was only after crashing through a heavy window they found the body of the director, slumped against the door as if in a last desperate effort he had attempted to force the door open.

It was not until after the fire had been brought under control that the firemen found the body of Miss Bird lying where she had fallen close to the bed. The body of the actress was charred almost beyond recognition. The body of Cummings was burned and seared.

An inquest will be held, the date of which has not yet been announced.

DIEGEL LEADS INITIAL PLAY BRITISH GOLF

Large Entry Qualifies in Open—Student Makes Hole in One

Canadian Press

GULLANE, Scotland, May 7—With a score of 144 for the 36 holes for the qualifying round, Leo Diegel, professional champion of the United States and Canadian open champion, has a good chance of leading the field of 240 in the first stage of the British open championship competition.

Six strokes behind Diegel with a score of 150 comes Cyril Tolley, British amateur. There appears a considerable list of British and United States stars with scores ranging from 153 to 160.

Back of Tolley trailed another Briton, Arthur Havers, pro, whose fine round of 72 today gave him a qualifying total of 153.

Hagen In Difficulty

Then came three Americans. Walter Hagen, defending champion had all sorts of difficulties but finally turned up with a 79 for a 36 hole total of 154.

A stroke behind him was "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, of New York, who added a 76 to his 79 of yesterday. Joe Turnesa, who scored a 79 yesterday, needed eighty at Muirfield today and had to be satisfied with an aggregate of 159.

Gene Sarazen scored 75 today for a total of 156, and Tommy Armour, former American open champion, added a 78 to his 77 of yesterday, making 155.

Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., travelled the course today in 76 for a total of 154.

MacDonald Smith, New York, shaved two strokes off his card of yesterday making 77 today for a total of 156.

John Golden scored a 77 for a 36 hole total of 156.

164 May Qualify

As the scores mounted, chiefly because of the high wind, it was predicted that a 36 hole total of 164

1919 STRIKE ECHO HEARD IN COMMONS

Would Restore $125,000 Lost Pay to Postal Dept. Workers

Canadian Press

OTTAWA, May 7—Ten years after it took place, echoes of the Winnipeg strike were heard in the House of Commons Monday. Hon. P. J. Veniot, postmaster general laid before the house a proposal to provide for readjustment of salaries of postal workers who went on strike but were subsequently re-employed at reduced salaries. The resolution of the postmaster-general would, in brief have the effect of restoring to these employees the money which they have lost by the fact that they returned to work in inferior positions. The cost of doing this is estimated to be approximately $125,000.

Mr. Veniot's resolution met with a good deal of criticism, the result of which was that the committee finally rose and reported progress so that it might be revised.

The employees affected total 96. There are 79 in Winnipeg and the balance in Calgary and Saskatoon.

Frantic Brokers Crowd Into "Pit" Turmoil Reigns

Market Has Worst Day in Four Years—Prices Break 8½ to 9⅛ Cents Over Arbor Day Recess—American Freight Cut Causes Trouble

Canadian Press

WINNIPEG, May 7.—Panic-stricken memories of the deep slump in wheat prices four years ago were conjured up from a frantic market today. Breaks of 8½ to 9⅛ cents from Saturday's close, resulting from announcement of reduction of United States grain freight rates, as well as from weakness at Liverpool and Chicago and Buenos Aires, carried prices down to new low levels.

The close, after but meagre reaction, was 8 cents to 7 cents lower for the day. During the morning's frenzied trading, May wheat sold as low as 111¼, July dropped to 112⅝, and October swooped down to 114. Closing quotations were: May, 111⅝; July, 114; October 115⅝ to ½.

On the coarse grain market, rye prices declined sharply in sympathy with the wide-open break in wheat. Oats and barley, however, remained comparatively steady.

Worst in Years

Not since January, 1925, when a burst of selling dropped prices nearly 15 cents to close 11 cents down for the day, has Winnipeg's market experienced so wild a spectacle. Four years back, however, the drop was due more to the speculative position of the market than to basic conditions, as is the case at present.

Hands filled with stop loss orders which they futilely endeavored to execute, frantic brokers crowded the pit today. In the first five minutes, prices dropped 5 to 6 cents a bushel; an hour and a half later the recession stood at from 8¼ cents to more than 9 cents; by 11 o'clock buying had reduced the drops to the vicinity of 6 and 7 cents.

Trouble on Holiday

Initial weakness arose out of declines at Chicago, Liverpool and Buenos Aires yesterday, while the Winnipeg market was enjoying the Arbor Day recess. Large scale dumping of Argentine wheat on the Liverpool market at underselling rates had its effect.

Announcement of two cent reductions in carrying rates on United States railroads, planned to enable the American farmer to compete with the Argentine producer, added to the downward influences. Coupled with the other factors, came reports of practically complete paralysis of Canada's export trade, due to the congestion of loaded grain vessels at Port Colborne, with no movement out of Montreal.

Traders expressed the opinion that President Hoover's determined efforts to aid the American farmer by easing the progress of grain to shipping ports was having an effect other than that desired. They believed that the old country buyer, realizing that the world today has a large surplus of wheat, regards the downward tendencies of United States rail rates as in the na-

BANKS FIGURE NEW PLAN TO FINANCE CROP

Will Loan on Grain on Farms to Prevent Port Congestion

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin
By Staff Correspondent

OTTAWA, May 7.—The banks of Canada are said to be considering a new method of financing the western grain crop in view of the unprecedented congestion at Port Colborne and Montreal this year. It is understood that proposals are being drawn up to make advances to the farmer on the basis of grain in storage on his own farm, thus eliminating the terrific rush to market which has jammed the ports.

At Montreal on Saturday 49 ships were waiting to unload. At Port Colborne the situation is just as bad. There are various reasons, including the dumping of Argentine wheat on the European market and the ice conditions in Germany preventing the import of wheat reaching the interior. There was some relief in the situation by the sale by Australia of 30,000,000 bushels of wheat to India.

Record Time

By the use of the combine harvester the 1928 crop was ready for market in record time. Good roads due to fine weather and the use of motor trucks resulted in a flood of grain reaching the country elevators far heavier than the railways could handle.

The agricultural committee was told this morning that over 3,000,000 bushels went into the country elevators in September, and by the end of the month 20,000,000 bushels surplus had accumulated. By the end of November this surplus was 34,000,000. This grain all moved out as fast as the railways could carry it, and the congestion was transferred to the terminals and ports. Most of last year's crop is out and has no place to go. Next year an attempt may be made to remedy this situation by encouraging the farmers to keep their grain on the farm, and money will be advanced on that basis to tide them over until it is marketed.

Seeding Progress In South Alberta

Canadian Press

LETHBRIDGE, May 7. — The Herald's first weekly crop report published Monday covers 49 points in southern Alberta and shows a very wide variation in the amount of wheat seeded. On the McLeod and Aldersyde branches of the C.P.R., seeding is about 50 per cent completed, but on branches south and east of Lethbridge the precipitation in the past month has been so heavy that only five to 25 per cent is seeded. Over four inches precipitation have been recorded in Lethbridge during April and May to date and in the dry belt of southeastern Alberta the fall has been equally heavy. A large increase in the number of tractors in use is aiding the situation, and the grain will go in rapidly. The weather on Monday was clear and cool and appeared more settled.

Glowing Picture of British Progress Arouses Little Enthusiasm

HOUSE TAKES NO INTEREST IN RECITAL

Cunliffe-Lister Talks of Progress But Members Listen Listlessly

By GEORGE HAMBLETON,
Canadian Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON, May 7—Steadily if slowly British trade is moving towards better days, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, president of the Board of Trade, told the house of commons the last five years had shown very remarkable progress considering the setback received in 1926, the year of the general strike.

Commodore H. Douglas King, under-secretary of state for mines, related how coal exports had increased from 15,745,000 tons in the first four months of 1928 to 17,867,000 tons in the same period of 1929. Pithead losses had been converted into profits. In the March quarter of 1928 there was a pithead loss of ninepence per ton on commercial coal, he said, and this rose in the June quarter to a loss of one shilling and fivepence per ton. This year it was estimated there was a profit of sevenpence per ton in January and ninepence in February and indications for March were still more favorable.

Story of Four Years

Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister gave the following trade balances as indicating the growth of British trade 1924—86,000,000 pounds.

1926—90,000,000 pounds.
1927—114,000,000 pounds.
1928—149,000,000 pounds.

Taking 1924 as the basis year, he pointed out exports generally in 1928 were 4.0 per cent. higher and manufactured exports were up 7.8 per cent. Figures for the first quarter of 1929 were still more satisfactory, he said. For that period again taking the corresponding period in 1924 as a base exports as a whole were up 9.2 per cent. and exports of manufactured goods were up 14 per cent.

Duty Did Not Hurt

Sir Philip argued the trade returns did not support the view so often expressed in the house of commons that the imposition of customs duties retarded export trade. He said between 1924 and 1928 exports of dutiable articles rose from thirty million to thirty-nine million pounds. In the same period the exports of non-dutiable manufactured articles dropped from 589,000,000 to 539,000,000 pounds.

The head of the Board of Trade then quoted figures of general production to show the upward trend of trade. The shipbuilding industry, he said, could be taken as a good general barometer and its prosperity was a satisfactory omen for future trade prospects.

Experiments in the use of pulverized coal were giving increasing satisfaction, he said, and added: "The information I have encourages me to hope that if present experiments prove as satisfactory as they seem likely to prove, they indicate an economy far larger than I thought or those concerned thought possible a year ago."

Despite its optimism the speech was received with little enthusiasm. It was delivered to a lifeless house of almost empty benches.

involved in organizing big business; competition is no longer the means to the life of trade," declared S. L. Squire, Toronto, chairman of the executive of the Canadian Good Roads association.

Produce Uniformity

The purpose of interprovincial conferences was, to bring about an understanding so that a uniformity of construction of highways might be made possible. Not only in construction, but in road rules, signs, etc., should there be complete similarity, he added.

The entrance of the automobile in the world of transportation might be superceded by air machines, Mr. Squires said. But he did not think that the near future would see in Canada an intensified system of airways across continent.

Representative Parley

Representatives from Alberta, Manitoba, Quebec and the Maritimes, as well as from Ontario, were present at the conference. The Canadian Pacific Railway, the Canadian National system, the Canadian Railway association, the Rubber association of Canada, the Canadian Electric Railways association, the Canadian Good Roads association and the Canadian Electric Auto Manufacturers' and Exporters' association all sent representatives to the gathering.

Woman In the Home

Household Cares Make Great Demands on the Health

The work of the average woman in the home makes greater demands on their vitality than men realize, and there is always something more to do. When the breadwinner has finished, the housewife begins anew. No wonder women's backs ache and their nerves are worn out. No wonder they get depressed and irritable, suffer from headaches and generally feel out of sorts. But, of course, all women are not like that—what is the difference?

A woman with plenty of healthy, red blood in her veins finds work in the home easy. She asks for no pity; her vitality is at par. This points the way to health for others. Make new blood. You can do it with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have the marvellous property of renewing the blood and toning up the nerves. Your improved appetite and digestion will show the effect of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Your fatigue and your backache, your headaches and depression will vanish. You will find new joy in living.

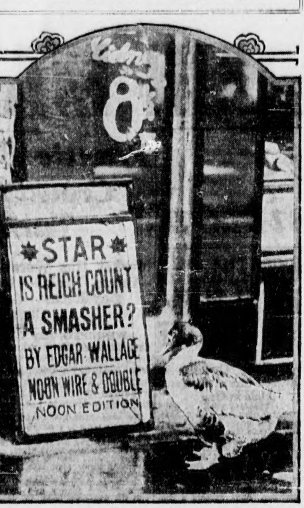
Something New—A Watch-Goose



A gray-white goose acts outside a butcher shop in London as a watch-goose in the same manner as a watch-dog would. She answers to the name of Daisy and keeps dogs and cats from the shop door, where they are apt to decamp with tasty tidbits. The photo shows Daisy interested in the chances of Reigh Count, the famous American horse, as she keeps her post outside the butcher shop.

"Walkers" department store, published in the Los Angeles Examiner. The advertisement filled ten pages. Those who think such an investment excessive in a high price medium, are mistaken. It is important to deserve success. It is equally important to command attention. Don't whisper, if you can afford to yell.

THE U. S. did eight to ten billions in foreign trade last year, but Dr. Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, says American business methods waste eight to ten billions each year. Thoughtless promotion, imperfect merchandise distribution, disorderly marketing of perishable goods, high cost of unsystematic warehousing, cause part of the loss. Two hundred millions to five hundred millions a year could be saved by improved handling methods. Look at the "skid platform" device. Henry Ford suggested the five-day work week "that workers might have time to spend and enjoy their earnings." Prosperity, according to Ford, must depend on wise spending of the ninety billions per year collected by wage earners.

OWEN D. YOUNG, an American, is thought to have solved the German reparation problem. His suggestion, approved by Britain, would let Germany pay annuities for 37 years instead of 58 years, beginning with $402,050,000 a year instead of $600,000,000, increasing payments by $6,000,000 a year for ten years.

PROHIBITION agents ransacked the U. S. warship Richmond for four hours, looking for whiskey. They did not find any. Captain Osterhaus said he thought no liquor would be found, because "all men are searched when they come aboard from shore leave." The sailors will suspect that while their country needs and admires them, it does not exactly trust them.

NATURE wants each living thing to reach maturity, and wise men avoid the immature. Lamb is less nourishing than adult mutton. Veal not one-tenth as good as beef. Young chickens lack food value. You know about green apples. Now science tells you that the vitamine A, important to life and health, is abundant in ripe red tomatoes, lacking in green tomatoes.

Queen Returns To Buckingham Palace

Associated Press

LONDON, May 7—The queen arrived in London today from Bognor to take up residence at Buckingham palace until Saturday. For the first time in this reign her majesty will hold the royal courts without the king, who has not recovered sufficiently to take in the season's first courts at Buckingham palace on Thursday and Friday. The queen smiled to the crowd at the station and then immediately motored to the palace.

SURE TO GET HIM

SPENCER, Mass., May 7—Homer Fredette, 45, is probably the only man to experience being struck by two automobiles at the same time and live to tell the tale. In crossing the street recently, Fredette was struck by one automobile and hurled into the path of another, which also struck him. He received a broken collar bone, abrasions of both legs and a few cuts.

ATTEMPTS TO KILL PREMIER, KILLS ANOTHER

Assassin's Fire on Premier of Lithuania, and Slay Aide

Associated Press

KOVNO, Lithuania, May 7.—One person was dead and two were under treatment today for serious wounds as a consequence of an assassination attempt last night against Premier Augustinas Waldemaras. Neither the premier nor his wife were injured. The assailant escaped.

The attack was made as the party entered the garden of a theatre where they were to attend a concert. Three bullets from the assailant's gun struck Guddinas, an aide of the premier, and he died instantly. Another bullet passed through the right lung of Captain Verbickas, another aide, while a fifth inflicted a serious wound on a grand-nephew of the premier.

Professor Waldemaras became premier and minister of foreign affairs of Lithuania on December 18, 1926, after a military revolt, the circumstances of which gave rise to charges that the army has dominated the government ever since.

During his term as premier, M. Waldemaras has engaged in frequent quarrels with Poland over the boundary of the two countries and internal trouble which he has charged to Poland.

might qualify. Thus, Ernest Whitcombe, British Ryder cup player, with 84 and 80, total 164, might just squeeze in.

Henry Cotton, young British pro, hit his stride today to turn in a score of [illegible], for a total of 153.

Percy Alliss, German open champion, followed a round of 85 yesterday with 77 today to stop on the border line of qualifying with a total of 162.

Hagen had trouble not only with his long game but on the greens as well. He was constantly in trouble on his first nine, but showed some improvement coming home, although he needed a six on the sixteenth.

Joe Turnesa, of New York, needed all his craft to bring his score down within the probably qualifying limit.

Nine in 33

Crowds flocked to trail Diegel when word was passed that the professional champion of the United States had his demon putter working to take 33 on the first nine. He took six at the 483 yard ninth, missing a two foot put.

At the third Diegel holed a 20-foot putt for a birdie, got a two at the fourth and bagged a par five at the fifth, although he was trapped near the green. At the 450 yard sixth he sent his iron a yard beyond the pin, added another three at the seventh and got the difficult par four at the eighth. At the ninth he could have gone for the green after a tremendous smash into the wind, but he attempted to play safe and pushed his shot. His niblick to the green left the ball ten yards from the cup, and after putting almost dead, he missed, much to his disgust.

Perkins Well In

Phil Perkins, British amateur champion, hooked his way into the select circle of qualifiers with 74 for a total of 152.

Arnaud Massey, French pro, had 77 today for a total of 155. Joshua Crane, veteran Boston amateur took 94 for a total of 172.

George Duncan, captain of the triumphant British Ryder cup team went out in 37, a six at the ninth taking a bit of the edge off two threes in a row and five fours.

Abe Mitchell had a 78 today, giving him a 36-hole score of 153.

Al Watrous had a good 75 and took his place among the safe ones with a total of 152.

Ted Jewell, young British pro, who led the field after the first day's qualifying play with 72, took 82 today for a total of 154.

Von Elm was the only amateur from the United States to qualify.

The veteran James Braid failed by a stroke and Ernest Whitcombe by two. Harry Vardon slipped in with the ties as did Percy Allis.

Compston In

Aubrey Boomer turned in a card of 18 for a total of 153.

Archie Compston required 77 for his round today, making a total of 152.

George Duncan's good 75 gave him a score for the two days of 151.

Willis McKenzie, Scotch champion, scored 70 for a total of 157.

Jose Jurado, Argentine, scored 77 for a total of 153, playing steadily all the way.

Johnny Farrell went around in 78 today for a qualifying round of 160.

108 Qualify

All players scoring as low as 162 in the 36 hole qualifying test for the British open golf championship will enter play for the title tomorrow over a stretch of 72 holes.

Under the rules permitting the low 100 players and ties to continue the competition, 108 will move to Muirfield to carry on the struggle.

With more than 200 cards in, Leo Diegel with 144 for 36 holes, easily led the big qualifying field. Bobby Cruickshank with a total of 147, was next to Diegel. Cyril Tolley, British amateur, was third with only Ed. Dudley, of the American pros, in danger of elimination and 162 aggregate will place him just among the 100 who will survive the test closing today.

Hole In One

R. D. Mathieson, young Oxford University golfer, playing in the British open championship, today scored a hole inone at the sh[illegible]h on the Muirfield course. Mathieson had a ten on one hole yesterday, but made amends for it with his unusual shot today. It was the first hole in one scored in British open championship play since Abe Mitchell scored one at Deal in 1920.

The number four hole is 180 yards long. Mathieson's shot hit four feet in front of the pin and trickled in.

ture of dumping and looks for lower prices.

Canadian Press

WINNIPEG, May 7.—The greatest slump in wheat prices this year was recorded on today's wheat market when prices dropped as much as nine and one-eighth cents from yesterday's close. At eleven o'clock the market improved somewhat and showed May 6⅞c lower at 113; July 7⅛c lower at 114¾, and October 6½c lower at 116.

At the opening wheat was dumped into the pit in great quantities and the market fell back rapidly. Proposed railway rate reductions on grain in the United States and weakness at Liverpool and Chicago was the cause of the slump.

In the opinion of traders here, the measures proposed in the United States are having an opposite effect to that intended. Old country buyers know that there is a large surplus of wheat in the world today and they apparently regard these new measures in the south as in the nature of dumping and they are now looking for cheaper wheat.

Buenos Aires prices broke 3 cents to 2 cents yesterday and the South American buyers determined to continue to undersell other exporting countries though today they are getting only $1.00 a bushel for May wheat at Buenos Aires.

At 10 o'clock wheat was being dumped into the market on a large scale and turmoil reigned. At that time May had dropped 8½ to 114¼; July 9⅛c to 112¾; October 8½c to 114.

New Low in Chicago

CHICAGO, May 7.—The grain market clogged with an old crop surplus and wanting the incentive to check its downhill career, slipped to a new low level today on the current movement. Without a buying power willing to apply the brakes, wheat and rye struck record depths and all deliveries of corn except the current month followed suit. Wheat was down but ⅛ to ⅜c from yesterday's weak close, but today's opening had reached a point 4 cents below its level of a week ago and only the moderate pressure of short covering appeared to check it.

Winnipeg was off six cents at the start, but this compared with Saturday's close, for yesterday was a holiday at the Canadian market.

Liverpool opened weak today too influenced partly by the American freight rate reduction, good crop prospects in this country and weakness in the Argentine markets.

White Woman Held By Pirates Missing

Associated Press

CHEFOO, China, May 7.—Marie Monsem, of the Norwegian Lutheran mission, who was aboard the steamer Peking when it was attacked by pirates off Lungkow about April 23, is reported to be held in the pirate infested area at Litsthien on the Yellow river delta. This area is known as a hotbed of lawlessness, and is under the control of no military faction.

It was not known whether the steamer was still held by the pirates, although she has not yet arrived at her destination.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S BUDGET

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 7.—The estimates tabled in the Newfoundland legislature yesterday provide for a total expenditure for 1929-30 of $10,547,706 as against $10,438,139 for 1928-29.

The total funded debt of the colony is $81,424,149.

More than 1,132,000 vacuum cleaners were manufactured in the United States during 1928. About 60,270 of these were exported.

THE GROWING CITY

It is noteworthy that most of the building permits thus far issued at the city hall have been for the erection of residences. These number more than a hundred, and involve an expenditure of $400,000. The building of a house is not commonly planned far in advance, and the coming month is likely to see a much larger volume of applications for permits for this class of buildings.

The significance of this is that the population of the city is increasing, that employment is plentiful, and that confidence in future conditions is strong. Nothing in the way of a house-building "boom" can happen where either of these factors is lacking. Nor where loans for building cannot be obtained. Aside from what they imply as to investment and employment for the men in the building trades, the number of house-permits shows that there is a keen demand for homes for more people in Edmonton.

WHY THE DELAY?

The city council deferred action on the application of the medical officer of health for leave of absence, pending further consideration of the Frieda Schneider case. Meantime council has not appointed a police doctor. Nor issued authority to anyone connected with the police department to send a sick prisoner to hospital. Both these things should have been done immediately that tragedy occurred.

Why the delay, and the quibbling about leave of absence for the medical officer of health? Is council going to try to shoulder off upon this official the responsibility for its own niggardly failure to make any provision whatever for the care of sick prisoners? It is not, and never has been, any part of the duties of the head of the health department to give medical attention to prisoners. It is and has been the duty of the city council to see that such attention is provided.

THE GENEVA CONFERENCE

The conference at Geneva has adjourned, without hammering out any definite program for turning swords into plowshares, tanks into tractors and battleships into curios. It does not follow that the conference was a failure. In fact, it was a long way from being a gathering of no consequence. And it is to meet again, when the naval powers have had time to study plans for cutting down naval armament.

Two things at least the conference accomplished. It accepted the proposal of the United States that there should be a substantial reduction in armament. And it placed on record a challenge from the British nations to the world that poison gas should be barred. That is farther than any previous conference got in either direction. There is more fighting machinery in the world today than there was in 1914. And nearly every country on earth is prepared to deluge its neighbors with poison gas in the event of another outbreak. Agreement to cut down armament, and a "dare" to prohibit gas are very definite steps toward the disarmament ideal.

SENTIMENT PLUS BUSINESS

The tour through the west of Sir William H. Clark, British high commissioner in Canada, should have important practical results. That will be the case if it serves to bring home to western people how largely the industrial conditions in Britain may be improved if Canadians buy British goods instead of those of foreign origin. Sentiment is a powerful factor in directing the flow of trade. Without change of tariff or force of law, Canadians could materially help to speed up British factories, and create a larger demand for labor in the old lands, by simply asking at the stores for goods made in Britain.

Business, as well as kinship, urges that Canadians give sentimental preference to British goods. Great Britain last year bought $446,000,000 worth of Canadian products. Canada bought $193,000,000 worth of Britain's products. For each Canadian dollar sent to Britain, two and a half British dollars came back. If our customers there were more prosperous their orders for Canadian wheat and other products would be still larger. The only way they can attain real prosperity is by marketing a larger share of their factory-output abroad. This output consists in large part of goods which Canadians must and do import from some outside country. Why not do our buying where we do our selling, and thus enable our customers to buy more of what we want to sell them?

Curious Man

By EDGAR A. GUEST

'Tis curious whan men believe
And what they seem to doubt,
What strange professions they'll receive,
What truths they'll order out.

Advise your friend to progress slow
To methods that endure,
Counsel the longer way to go
The end of which is sure,

And though from him you seek no gain,
But wish to serve his need,
And would from folly him restrain,
To you he'll pay no heed.

But let a glib-tongued stranger call
With methods black as pitch,
Who smiling says: "Now first of all,
I've come to make you rich.

"You're one of just a chosen few
This ground-floor buy to share,
This little deal will make of you
A multi-millionaire."

Deaf to the friends who whisper low
That flatterers deceive,
Straight to the dotted line he'll go
And stuff like that believe.

A Larger Chance

By GLENN FRANK

There are several legends about this age of large-scale enterprise that need blasting.

One of these legends is to the effect that a large corporation is a machine devoid of sensitiveness and soul, and that the young man who enters it in quest of a career is lucky if he does not end as a mere cog in the machine.

It is true that, if a young man is the cog type, an effective modern corporation will see to it that he remains a cog.

If, on the other hand, a young man brings qualities of leadership to his task, the large-scale corporation of our time gives him a greater insurance of advancement than his father enjoyed in the small-scale enterprises of an earlier time.

Two things marked the enterprise of earlier generations, viz:

First, they were largely run by their owners, and this meant that the key positions were likely to be kept in the family.

Second, they were largely run by rule of thumb, and this meant that a young man's career was likely to be at the mercy of the guess, the hunch, or the whim of an owner.

Neither of these things mark the modern large-scale corporation.

In the large enterprises of our time ownership and management are quite severely separate.

Management has become a science, an art, a profession.

And our great industries are maintaining training and personnel activities, the purpose of which is to see to it that no asset of ability in the ranks is allowed to go undiscovered and that every spark of latent genius in the ranks is blown into flame.

The large enterprise today gives the young man a greater guaranty of a fair chance at a career than the smaller enterprises of an earlier time gave to his father.

Most of the great industrial leaders of this generation have risen to power without influence and primarily through their intrinsic qualities of leadership.

Ownership has learned that it does not pay to give the biggest job to any save the best man, and modern industry is organized to hunt for the best man.

Those of Lake Ste Anne also brought in about 100 bear skins.

The beaver hunt in this district has been small this spring, only about a third of the usual number of skins brought in.

A letter was received recently by Thos. Hourston from Christian Burns of Lunenburg, N.S., now in Demarara, South America, asking for information regarding the gold deposits on the Saskatchewan. Health and Diet Advice

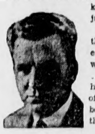
By DR. FRANK McCOY

Diet Specialist and Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions on Health and Diet Answered by Dr. McCoy, when addressed in care of The Edmonton Bulleain

EXPERIENCE AND EVOLUTION

All of the developments of life and civilization have come through experience. Personal experience is a more expensive method of learning, because we must pay so much for our follies and our sorrows. Fortunate, indeed, is the man who can learn from the experiences of others. Only by knowing the lessons of the past can we exercise our judgment upon the problems of the future.



Frank McCoy

Millions of people have lived and made mistakes in their living habits and they have developed many diseases which you can prevent in your own case if you will only profit by their costly experiences.

Many of the rules I am giving you in these lessons have been gathered from the experience of thousands of patients, the benefit of which you can have without being forced to live through their mistakes or suffer the same bad consequences.

How often people will refer to some friend who has just died in the prime of life: "It was so surprising; he has never been sick before, and he seemed such a healthy man." This brings out an important point. No man can be truly healthy who is daily committing dietetic errors and under-exercising. Disease will develop in the body of such a man whether or not he shows any outward symptoms.

It should not be necessary for one to live through life repeating the bad habits over and over again. The time to correct bad habits is when you first discover them. One should not wait until one hears the rustle of death's wings before reforming.

There are many people who are smart enough in business, or who are philosophers or inventors, who will readily admit that overeating is harmful, and yet they may go through their whole lives without once having tried to curb their appetites or cut down the amount of their food to a sensible quantity.

Overeating is just as bad for one person as for another. The only difference is that some people do not notice the bad effects as quickly as others. Those who are much troubled with digestive disturbances from overeating during early life will surely reap the harvest of bad health later. Sometimes we are unable to see the insidious hold of a bad habit until it is practically impossible to reform. Why not learn from the experience of others and save yourself much misery?

When your doctor tells you that gluttony is the cause of many of your infirmities, he is not only giving you his own private opinion, but the accumulated wisdom of the ages. In these daily articles I am giving you the experience gained from over twenty years of active contact with patients and countless laboratory experiments, as well as a lifetime of reading and study. These experiences are given with the hope that they will save you from going through needless suffering and assist you toward living a richer and happier life.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Questions: Mrs. S. writes: "I recently read an article regarding the influence of the pituitary gland upon growth — that there were certain treatments which would influence this gland toward producing growth. Would that mean increased strength as well as physical growth? Children gain strength as they grow, you know. I am of very small stature and seem to be literally wearing out, and I have so much to live for that I would try anything. How could I get in touch with anyone familiar with this method?"

Answer: The pituitary gland treatments are still in an experimental stage and their value has not been definitely ascertained. It is doubtful if they would be of value in increasing the growth of one who is mature. You may be able to increase your height slightly by spinal exercises and much walking, but withal, you will probably have to console yourself with the fact that a short stature is not a detriment to a woman.

Questions: Miss C. A. W. writes: "(1) Does not intestinal putrefactive quality of meats render them more objectionable than other forms of protein food? (2) Is it true that asparagus is not advisable for persons suffering from diseased or weak kidneys? (3) Are eggs a good food for such persons? (4) Is it true that two ounces of protein food is sufficient daily for the average adult?"

Answer: (1) No, not when taken with fresh salad vegetables. (3) A moderate use of asparagus is not injurious. (3) You should be able to handle a limited number of eggs, about one a day, properly prepared by coddling or poaching. (4) More protein food is necessary when no starches are used.

Planetary Influences on This Day for All

Today is favorable for social activities. Favors in employment. Avoid risk and impulsive action. Unfavorable for litigation. While the day is fairly propitious for speculation, it is necessary to avoid sudden losses. Does not favor any enterprises dealing with steel. Artistic affairs are favored.

For Those Whose Birthday Is Today

If you were born on May 7 your desires are directed toward an understanding of the mysteries of life, and you may have many experiences tending to arouse your interest in affairs beyond your comprehension for the present. You may also be greatly misjudged and misunderstood, and it is necessary that you cope with these situations by training your intelligence in any work dealing with literature or botany, or as historian astronomer, pulp manufacturer, goldsmith or electrician. The most favorable period for attempting anything reasonable in nature where beneficial results are required are the summer of 1929, the winter of 1930, the year of 1931 and the fall of 1932.

Robert Browning, Born May 7, 1812

An example of a person born on May 7 is Robert Browning, celebrated English poet, whose horoscope indicates a charming personality, with a knowledge and understanding which would enable him to find the entrance to hidden fields of learning. Physical difficulties limited his physical prowess. An appreciation of music would have entitled him, should he have so desired, to a prominent place in that field. Some of his best-known works are: "Men and Women" and "Dramatis Personae." Other persons born on this day were Joseph C. Cannon former Speaker of the House of Representatives, and Luther Burbank, noted botanist.

PARTIES

Calgary Albertan: A few days ago a young girl, aged 19, told a Montreal magistrate with apparent sorrow that "if a girl doesn't drink these days she's not wanted at a party."

Her regret at this decadent state of sociological affairs may have been more simulated than real but, giving her the benefit of the doubt, it would appear as if the trouble with this young lady and hundreds of others of her type is the company she chooses to keep, the stratum from which she selects her friends, and consequently the nature of the "parties" to which se is asked. If she and her sisters choose their friends from among the sort of people whom respectable men and women really enjoy knowing she will find herself invited to any amount of parties where she is at perfect liberty to "take it or leave it alone" and scores of others where a capacity for liquor will be regarded as anything but a social asset.

What of it if she is "not wanted at a party?" There are no end of other kinds of parties and if she really wants to be invited to them her first step is to comport herself properly, her second to choose her friends wisely.

Little Helen was very fond of listening to Bible stories. One day she said: "Mamma, please read that story again about Mr. Moses and the bulls rushing after him.

Keeping Mentally Fit

By Joseph Jastrow, A.B., A.M., Ph.D., LL.D.

Professor of Psychology, University of Wisconsin, 1888 to 1917; now professor emeritus; lecturer in the New School for Social Research, New York City; past president of the American Phychological Association

REPLIES TO READERS

Diet and Character

"Mens agitat molem," or mind vitalizes the body-mass. Some psychologists seem to put the whole problem of health in the mind. Dr. Emile Coue, for instance, claims that one can find health under any condition he lives. In fact, in his book, "Mastering Yourself," not a word is spoken of diet or exercise.

Some dietitians will tell you that your health depends entirely on what you eat, good combination, exercise, etc. One goes as far as to say that we are what we eat; so if one eats pork, he may turn into a pig. There may be some truth in it; one need only to compare the diet of a roughneck and the diet of a gentleman.

Still other dietitians claim that one needs both right thoughts and right diet. But there is a confusion in regard to diets among the dietitians. No two agree on the same diet. But the Psychologist of the psycologists, Christ, says: "It will be done to you as you will have belief." Does this mean that if one believes in diet, he will find health through exercising; and if still another believes only in the mind, he will find health through the mind? In other words, in whatever direction he switches his mind and concentrates, he will find what he seeks.

How should one understand it? What is your opinion? R.G.

Reply

We'll reach a better statement of this problem, if we will stop thinking about body and mind and learn to think of our body-mind; the two are one, inseparably bound together by nature and not to be put asunder for the convenience of human thinking. So there is a constant stream of influences from below upward from the several physiological systems whose normal functioning contributes to our total well-being, the influences traceable especially in terms of the working of the highest portions of our central nervous system, upon which our higher mental and emotional life depends.

These influences are contributed by all the physiological systems jointly, but by some more especially, more complicatedly. Breathing must go on normally, so must the circulation; disturbances in either affect the total state of mind. But most comprehensively is this true of the secretions of the body-mechanism, and of each of the involved processes differently.

Elimination of the waste products of the chemical laboratory in the body must go on adequately for the entire works, including mainly the mental works, will suffer. If these body-poisons (toxins) are not properly disposed of, we may become sluggish in mind and variously incapacitated. We have learned a lot lately about the internal secretions, about the tyroid gland, and the adrenal gland, and the pituitary gland; and so comprehensive is the influence of these glandular secretions on human behavior that this body of facts has almot established a glandular psychology.

We are in a very intimate sense what our glands make us; our temperaments and much of our emotional reactions depend upon a proper balance in the glandular secretions.

Understanding all this, we can give to digestion considerable but not a unique place in its influence on behavior. Appetite and good digestion influence total well-being and states of mind particularly. Many people suffer from chronic dyspepsia grouch. Nausea, stomachache, internal ills are all most distressing. Food and mood are allied in more than rhyme. And since digestion and diet are closely related, we come by the same route to include diet among the factors of total well-being, and of the mental aspects of it. But it isn't the diet that makes the roughneck or the gentleman; it is they who choose what and how they eat according to their nature.

But we must beware of extreme statements. Such a notion as that if one eats pork he may become pig-like in any sense is plain or elaborate nonsense. The difference between dietitians have in great measure an intelligible cause. Diet is alike a complicated and a detailed matter; and, again, there is always the second factor, how this and that food agrees with the patient; likewise what each needs according to the kind of work he does and the life he leads. When all this is taken into account, dietitians agree as closely as we can reasonably expect; although there are diet fads even among dietitians.

We come lastly to the reciprocal effect of diet on mind and of mind on diet; both are real. Certainly by way of disturbance—if you think a certain food will disagree with you and you worry about it, you increase the chances that it will. You may eat, as you do anything else, with faith or without it.

I have known persons to become ill after eating suspected muhrooms which proved to be quite edible; and there are as many who are kept awake by reminding themselves that they had coffee after dinner as are actually made restless by caffein. Sugar pills or bread pills do wonders when taken as advertised medicines. Clearly diet, no differently from all else has its complicated psychology.

Robert Quillen Says:—

The woman who works for hire retards the progress of the race.

She violates Nature's plan, and to violate nature is to invite disaster.

The female of the species may be more deadly than the male, and certainly the she tiger and the she wolf labor no less than their mates to get their daily meat; but man's young are more helpless than any other, and when woman was endowed by Nature with the duty and the ability to care for them, she was disqualified for other tasks that burden men.

Modern women, living and dressing sensibly and training themselves as athletes, demonstrate their ability to endure hardship and long-sustained effort; but one girl's ability to perform in a circus does not change the fact that women are weaker than men.

Whatever women's rights may be, and however capable she may be as a wage-earner, the fact remains that she must bear the children if any are borne, and she cannot bear children while holding a job.

Because our civilization is foolish and unjust and cruel, there are many women who must labor for hire to support fatherless children, to support invalid husbands and parents, and to earn their own bread.

But the existence of a wrong does not prove it right. Women on the Continent pull plows, but custom does not lessen the brutality of a civilization that tolerates such abuses.

The woman who must work deserves a man's pay if she takes a man's place.

She gets less, however, for many women who work for hire are driven by no other necessity than boredom and the desire for "their own pin money," and these, desiring a way to kill time more than they covet the reward of money, willingly work for small wages and thus cheapen the labor of women who must work or starve.

What is more, and worse, as they become more like men—in vigor, ability and independence—they scorn the age-old duties and privileges of womanhood. Because babies interfere with freedom, they will have no babies.

Thus the better class—the educated strong and independent—becomes ever less prolific, and the business of reproducing the race falls more and more upon the poor and the unfit.

Thus the meek surely will inherit the earth, for the others leave no progeny.

The women workers who need not work deprive men of jobs, lower the wages of women who must work, and slowly but surely lower the birth-rate of the fit.

They have their pin money, and thus avoid humiliation of appealing to father or husband, but the world pays a great price to save their pride.

On This Date—

MAY 7th.

Until the Great War came the submarine had been a vessel largely associated in the lay mind with the romantic side of the sea. Jules Verne, who by the way, is supposed to have got his idea for his story of "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" from Robert Fulton's model, was, possibly somewhat responsible for it. Then came the war and the full realization of these vessels as a weapon of death was thrust upon us. In 1915 the world was shocked by the news of an occurrence at sea unequalled by any deed by which the old time pirates had made their names infamous. On this day, May 7, Germany consummated a career of high sea infamy by torpedoing the Cunard liner Lusitania. Even for German ruthlessness this had appeared a crime of too great a magnitude to be entertained seriously, for although it would appear that advertisements were inserted in the New York papers warning passengers before the huge vessel left port that she would be sunk, she sailed as usual, with a population of 1,900 men, women and children. All through the ages war has been a pretty brutal business, but it was left to 20th century culture to sink an unarmed vessel with hundreds of women and children aboard. Unfortunately for German aims there were over 100 Americans who lost their lives in this catastrophe. Whatever ideas of German humanity the Americans may have cherished this latest outrage gave to them an ugly jolt. It led to the retirement of Herr Dernburg and a feverish exchange of notes. But it did little good as far as Americans were concerned, for, shortly after, the "Arabic" followed the "Lusitania" with 26 Americans on board. And yet, probably, to this day many Germans fail to see the justification for America joining in the war.

AT PANTAGES

Good all-round entertainment is supplied on this week's bill at Pantages by Manager Walter P. Wilson.

Ilene Fogarity in "Songs You Know," assisted by Gwendolyn McQuaig, local performers deputized brilliantly for the leading act.

Another act that shines brightly is the Alma and Duvall Revue. While there is a goodly supply of both singing and dancing in this act, it must be confessed that the dancing is the strongest feature. Of the two principals too much cannot be said. They are dancers of the first water, being able to hold their own with the best this season has produced. Joe Evans and Betty and Berdine, the assisting artists leave little to be desired.

For hearty laughs the offering of Bennett and Richards can be cordially recommended. They have a rare gift for satire which is developed to no inconsiderable extent. They "take off" a dramatic effect in most skilful style and in so doing produce sufficient laughs to last for long after the show as a whole has terminated They went over big.

Holland and O'Den in "You'd Be Surprised," are good for more laughs The former has a genuine and natural gift for comedy and can get his material across when most would fail He has a good foundation to work on as jokes on motorists and motoring always go well, especially when put across in such convincing fashion His partner is highly accomplished and the two work well together.

The Osak Boys, as one may gather hail from the land of cherry blossoms and can juggle with the best of them Many novel and unusual twists are given to their stunts, all of which are decidedly pleasing.

The Pantages News, a fable and a short round out of the movie portion of the program.

Al Preston and his orchestra provide much excellent music both on their own account and in accompanying the acts.

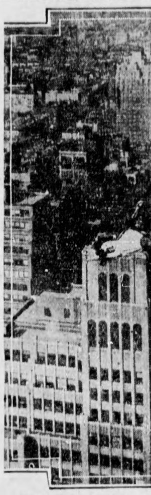
A High Type Of Acrobatics



You've seen stories about women rising in the world. Well, here you see the 43rd storey of the New York hotel and a woman who has risen so far that she has come to the end of her rope. It was a long way down, but business was looking up for Anna Campol, comely young member of a "flying circus" who performed the highest type of acrobatics above the New York skyline while workmen stood on their beams and beamed upon her.

AT THE CAPITOL

A 100 per cent talkie program is offered to the New Capitol patrons for the first three days of the week with the famous "Interference" heading the bill of fine entertainment.

Starring four of Hollywood's best Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook, Doris Kenyon and William Powell, "Interference" is one of the masterpieces of the speaking screen. It was filmed with Vitaphone and the picture is further evidence of the manner in which sound has lifted the screen to new levels.

"Interference" is the story of a man, believed to have been killed in the war, who turns up again and chases blackmailers who are making life miserable for his wife who has been re-married to a prominent surgeon. Incidentally William Powell with his marvelous film voice has been lifted from the villain roles to something a little more heroic. Clive Brook has a dignified voice becoming his role as the doctor, and Evelyn Brent is well-placed with her blackmail part.

Two real features are added to the entertainment. They are Eddie Cantor, famous Broadway entertainer and Ruth Etting, well-known through her Columbia recordings. Both sing two numbers from the screen and Capitol patrons receive a treat when they hear them.

Major Segrave's record-making speed of 231 miles an hour in a car is pictured in the Fox Movietone news The roar of the powerful motors adds a thrill to the picture.

AT THE MONARCH

As a part of the action in one of the scenes in the remarkable Paramount picture, "The Wedding March," now at the Monarch theatre, ZaSu Pitts was required to give vent to what is known as "hearty laughter." And Erich von Stroheim, star and director of the production, lived up to his reputation for realism by decreeing that it must be a genuine, tinkling laugh.

It so happens, however, that ZaSu always laughs silently, so she spent the greater part of two hours in wandering about the stage and practicing the art of emitting more-or-less hearty guffaws. Startled electricians, not in on the secret, looked after her and shook their heads sadly.

AT THE DREAMLAND

After a brief but wholly enjoyable incursion into other fields of filmdom than those in which he has for many years been the bright and shining star Tom Mix is back in the great southwest in his latest screen presentation in which he and Tony, "the wonder horse," cavort over familiar ground and amid their customary surroundings.

Which is a manner of saying that his new FBO starring feature, "Outlawed," now showing at the Dreamland theatre, is a typical "western drama that includes a bandit gang, a bank robbery, a sheriff's posse on the trail and other elements for thrills and suspense.

AT THE PRINCESS

"Do Your Duty"—First National picture which is at the Princess theatre, is one of those laugh pictures which depends upon its human comedy for its appeal.

Charlie Murray, the star of the film which William Beaudine directed, is noted for the naturalness of his work even when it is on the verge of burlesque. His long experience in all forms of comedy from burnt cork to straight roles, makes it possible for him to take a leaf out of his long list of parts and apply it to any role he may be given.

In this film he is a police officer and is framed by crooks. He wins to the end by luck, determination and the aid of a Scotch tailor played by Lucien Littlefield.

AT THE EMPRESS

Combining his mammoth Baby Contest with a splendid program Manager Samuel Binder has provided Empress theatre patrons with a gala entertainment for the first three days of this week.

The Baby Contest is proving a knock-out feature and is entering upon its last two weeks. The lists are crowded and competition is getting so keen that the prospective judges are already beginning to look around for alibis.

The feature presentation, "Hard-Boiled" starring Sally O'Neill. It tells a story of a modern girl who thinks more of money than anything else in the world and men primarily as a means of obtaining more. With a theatrical back ground it is most effective. But as often happens even in real life of those connected with the theatre, true love finds a way and the girl, so apparently "hard-boiled" finds herself not invulnerable to Cupid's Darts.

It is a gripping story, well told and played, with Miss O'Neill given the very staunchest support from the large and excellent cast.

A couple of shorts round out the program.

Fitting musical accompaniments were provided by Tom Gardner and his most excellent orchestra.

Mrs. Dunphy Has Hard Luck With Her Relatives

Canadian Press

SAUL STE MARIE, Ont., May 7.—The long arm of co-incidence stretched across a period of over 40 years to bring in a second disappearance into the life of Mrs. Peter Dunphy, when her husband last evening walked out of the house in his carpet slippers to disappear from view, despite an all night search. More than two score years ago, in August 1888, 13-year-old Maude Gillespie, a daughter of Mrs. Dunphy's by an earlier marriage, walked out from the family home about five miles from Thessalon to pick berries and from that date on nothing definite has been known as to her fate.

At the time it was believed that she had been kidnapped by Indians and various stories of traces of the girl having been found have been reported from time to time, but although the search was kept for years, Maude was neer located.

Thirty Years Prison Imposed For Murder

Associated Press

FREEHOLD, N.J., May 7.—Joseph Farragia, Neptune township laborer, was sentenced to 30 years in state's prison for the killing of Harold Johnston, high school student.

Farrugio accused Johnston of intimacy with the former's 16-year-old daughter. The killing occurred in October 1928, after Johnston had refused to marry the girl.

Transportation members of the Kiwanis Club had charge of the regular luncheon held in the Macdonald hotel Monday. Addresses dealing with rail and steam travel were given, while the programs were distributed to members in the form of ticket booklets. The menu card was unusual, with a map of the Dominion on the back.

Indigestion, Gas and Severe Pain

Of the thousands of people whom Tanlac has saved from the misery of Indigestion and Stomach Trouble, none are more grateful than Mr. Fred Hill, 349 Thames St., London, Ont "I had about given out altogether," he says, "and was going down hill so fast that I thought nothing could stop me I ate only two light meals a day and even then suffered untold agonies from indigestion, gas and pains that just doubled me up. My nerves were wrecked, every bone in my body ached; I could not sleep; and just felt sick all over.

"Tanlac fixed me up so I could eat anything from soup to dessert without having indigestion. All my other troubles vanished like smoke. I picked up twelve pounds and never felt better. I never thought anything could do for me what Tanlac did."

Tanlac corrects Stomach Trouble and builds up the whole system because it is nature's own remedy for the sick—roots barks and herbs. Remember, your money back if it doesn't help you; so get a bottle at your druggists' today.

Sir William Otter, Famous Canadian Soldier · Dead in Toronto

HE ROSE FROM THE RANKS TO HIGHEST POST

Contributed Notable Service in South Africa and Northwest

Canadian Press

TORONTO, May 7—General Wm. Otter, K.C.B., who had a distinguished career, overseas in the South African war, through the North-West rebellion in Canada and in the capacity of director of internment operations in Canada during the great war, died here last night after a lingering illness.

He was 85 years old.

Sir William had been unconscious for the past ten days and, according to his physicians, death was due to old age. For a number of years he had lived a retired life at his apartments here, though up until a few months before his final illness he was a familiar and honored figure at military gatherings.

Sir William fell on a street car nearly two years ago and broke his ankle. He never recovered completely from the shock.

His only child, Mrs. Edrol Morten and her daughter, were at his bedside just before his death. He was attended by an old friend, Surgeon General J. T. Fotherington.

The funeral of the late Sir William Otter will be held on Friday afternoon. He will be accorded military honors and every unit in the permanent force and the militia regiments of the Toronto garrison will be represented.

Tentattive arrangements provide for the remains laying in state under military guard at the Armories on Thursday and Friday morning.

Honored Record

Before the Great War, Major-General Sir William Dillon Otter, K.C.B., was admittedly the most conspicuous example of "from private to major-general" among the sons of Canada. When his native country entered the world conflict in 1914 Sir William was past the allotted mark of three score years and 10. His record as a soldier was as full of honors as he was of years. The soldier spirit was undiminished and the body strong. Although he was on the retired list nobody was much surprised when he offered his services to the country "in any capacity." The country appreciated the offer and the force of character, military experience and ability which backed it up. But it was decided that the upstanding stripling of 71 had already "done his bit" so far as overseas service was permissible by the age limit.

Sir William was then offered the post of Director of Internment Operations in Canada during the war. He accepted. From 1914 to the close of the war he did his duty in a situation that required much organization work and produced many vexatious problems. It was a home post, but not a "cushy job." It entailed tactful handling of some thousands of interned enemy aliens, some inoffensive but many openly antagonistic and dangerous. They were scattered about the country in various camps, necessitating numerous coast to coast dashes by the director.

Had Many Posts

Otter's "Fifty Years of Soldiering in Canada"—if it is ever published—will be a remarkable tale of the hot spots in the growth and progress of the dominion. He served with distinction in the South African War, 1899-1900, but previous to that he took part in all the military operations marking the military history of Canada during the latter half of the last century. In 1861 he was a private in Canada's early volunteers. Promoted to lieutenant in the Queen's Own Rifles in 1864, he served in the defence of the country from the Fenian Raids of 1866 and 1870. He became lieutenant-colonel in 1874 and commanded his regiment during the Toronto "Pilgrimage Riots" in 1875 and the Grand Trunk Railway riots in 1877 (Belleville, Ont.). On the organization of Canada's permanent forces or training schools he was appointed commandant at Stanley Barracks, Toronto.

In North West

In the suppression of the North West Rebellion in 1885 Lieutenant-Colonel Otter was in command of the Battleford column which made the famous forced marches across the trails of the wide prairie, well trellised nowadays with railway lines. He was engaged in the expeditions against the Big Indian Chiefs Poundmaker and Big Bear.

For the next 15 years followed piping years of peace so far as Canada was concerned. In that interval Lieut. Colonel Otter made several trips to England, with Bisley teams and other military parties. He took varous courses and passed examinations as Lieutenant Colonel in the British Army, which in those days of British Army exclusiveness was some distinctive accomplishment for a Canadian. He was the author of Otter's "Guide", an approved text book on interior economy for the use of Canadian military training schools.

In Africa

The outbreak of the South African War found Colonel Otter in command of Canada's first contingent. He was wounded, mentioned in despatches twice, promoted and given the title of Commander of the Bath for his services there. In that campaign he was a disciplinarian to measure of strictness that provoked some criticism in his homeland, where people were not accustomed to the exigencies of military service, cabled thanks from Queen Victoria, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Canada's Premier, and various presentations on his reaching home were among the ameliorating honors of his South African service.

With the rank of Brigadier-General he commanded the Canadian troops at the Quebec Tercentenary in 1908 and there received the decoration of Commander of the Victorian order. He later held the appointments of Inspector General of the Canadian forces, and chief of the General staff, thus completing the round of practically every executive position in the Canadian Militia, with the exception of Minister of Militia and Defence. General Otter was never in politics.

In June, 1913, while in England he was vested by King George with the high honor of Knight Commander of the Bath.

William Dillon Otter was born near Clinton, Ont., on Dec. 3, 1843, the son of Nottinghamshire, Eng., parentage. He was educated in Public and High schools and in Upper Canada college. In his early days he was quite prominent in lacrosse circles. In 1865 he married Marian Porter, daughter of an Anglican clergyman—the General was also an Anglican. Lady Otter died in 1914.

Sir William was a member of the Toronto, York and other clubs in Toronto, and the Rideau in Ottawa.

They Figured Her Legs Would Win In a Walk

Well, here she is! Press agents, show producers, press agents, hosiery manufacturers and press agents got their heads together. They brought measuring tapes. They put on smoked glasses. They knitted their brows. They conferred. They argued. They looked at, oh millions of girls, it seems. And finally, from a maze of nice figures they calculated that Barbara Newberry, Zeigfeld dancer, possesses "the loveliest legs in America." Here is Barbara—and, more important, here are her prize-winning legs. She and they will be sculped and painted by well-known artists.

People Of Gatineau Routed Out By Flood

Canadian Press

GATINEAU POINT, Que., May 7.—Water from the Gatineau river, which had steadily risen throughout Monday, invaded about 50 houses in the upper section of Gatineau Point at night, forcing their occupants either to move to the second storey or to vacate. Traffic past Moreau's bridge on St. Jean Baptiste street ceased as six inches of water swept over the wooden structure.

The rise in the river was estimated to have been from eight to 10 inches, from seven o'clock until midnight.

DEBS MOTHERS VOTE TO STOP DANCES EARLY

Revolting Against Late Hours They Endorse Earlier Social Functions

NEW YORK, May 7.—The revolt of debutantes against late hours, slovenly manners, and what is more to the point, the lack of men—men who have jobs and make desirable husbands—at social functions, has bore fruit. Mothers of debutantes joined the movement, and at a meeting yesterday at the home of Mrs. Seth M. Milliken, No. 951 Madison avenue, about 100 of them voted to indorse promptness at social functions and the early breaking up of dances.

Beginning next fall, dinners will start promptly at the appointed hour regardless of the number of guests who have arrived. Late comers will be in for embarrassment, and it is hoped they will consequently change their ways. Dances will end between 2 and 3 o'clock. Parties will be smaller and perhaps more select.

The movement for early hours was started when debutantes, headed by Miss Marks Truesdale, joined with the Mothers' League in an active drive for more reasonable hours. Three thousand questionnaires were sent to young men and women all over the city and in leading colleges asking if they would agree to be more punctual at luncheons and dinners and what they thought about late hours.

As things are now, it was pointed out by debutantes, dances never begin before midnight and continue until dawn. Men who have jobs are unable to attend, as the late hours interfere with their work.

BANDIT TELLS OF OLD CRIME

Man Sentenced to Death for Murder, But Commuted—Now Innocent

Associated Press

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 7.—Edward Larkman, sentenced to death for the murder of Ward J. Pierce, paymaster of the Art Metal shop during the week of April 13, 1926, and snatched from the electric chair by last minute commutation of sentence by Governor Alfred E. Smith, was innocent of any part in the crime, according to further confessions obtained yesterday from a member of the Big Korney gang.

Big Korney and his outlaw band operated in Buffalo and other cities for more than three years, their loot amounting to thousands of dollars and victims of their revolvers and machine guns numbering at least four killed and half a dozen wounded.

The most brutal of their crimes was the execution of one of their own number, Victor Chojocini, whose body was recovered from a barnyard on Sunday by the police.

Anthony Kalkiewicz, arrested in connection with the gang's latest hold-up and murder at the Fedders' plant today, gave police complete details of the Art Metal shop job.

Five men took part in the hold-up. They were, according to Kalkiewicz' confession, Big Korney, two members of his gang whose names are known to the police, an imported Chicago gangster, and Kalkiewicz. A sixth man implicated was Chojocini. It was his knowledge of this crime and the threat to squeal that led to his execution, Kalkiewicz said.

Larkman's conviction rested largely on the testimony of a woman witness, who swore positively that she recognized him as one of the raiders. When Larkman was sentenced by Justice Brown, he said: "Thanks, judge, but I am innocent."

Battle With Woman High Window Ledge

Canadian Press

WINNIPEG, May 7.—After a frenzied battle on a narrow window ledge of the Misericordia hospital, far above ground, a crazed woman patient was saved from an attempt jump to death. Two doctors and three nurses restrained the woman, as 100 spectators gasped below.

After freeing herself from a straight-jacket, the patient had climbed to the window, thrown off the screen and stepped out on the ledge. A nurse grappled with her and called aid which arrived barely in time to avert a tragedy. Hospital authorities withheld the name of the patient.

VICTORIA, B.C., May 7—John Ross, 86, resident here since 1905, when he came from Edmonton, died last night. He was engaged in the realty business in Edmonton from 1897 to 1905. He was a native of Ontario.

BOY WEDGED IN, DUG OUT BY POLICE

Stays There Two Hours Between Two Walls Till Rescue Comes

NEW YORK, May 7—Ira Riceman, ten, of No. 1107 Fteley Avenue, the Bronx, was wedged between the playground wall of Public School No. 47 and the rear wall of the Rosedale theatre, Beach avenue and 172d street, the Bronx, for two hours last night before police and firemen rescued him by tearing down part of the playground wall.

A rubber ball, batted by one of Ira's playmates, rolled into the space between the walls, only about a foot wide. Ira squirmed in after the ball. He found it about six feet from the entrance. He picked it up and was crawling out when he stumbled and fell, dislodging a stone which blocked the entrance. His playmates ran around the corner to the quarters of Engine Company No. 3 and pleaded for help. This was at 5:15 p.m.

The firemen threw Ira the end of a rope and bade him tie it around his waist. Then they tied rags soaked with grease on the ends of pike poles and swabbed the walls. Next they tugged at the rope but couldn't budge Ira an inch.

Police Emergency Service Unit No. 3 was called. Its members tried the greasing and rope methods but they also failed. Hundreds of persons on their way to the Rosedale theatre stopped to watch the rescue work. Finally, at 6:30 o'clock the police and firemen began tearing down the stone wall and freed Ira two hours later.

Ira suffered from shock and a few bruises but did not seem to have received internal injuries. He was taken to Fordham hospital, where he was to remain under observation throughout the night.

Big Sail Ship Long Overdue Fear Accident

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISO, May 7—Fears for the fate of the five-masted, square-rigged sailing ship Kobenhavn, nearly 100 days overdue at Melbourne, Australia, were expressed here by Christian Jensen, president of the East Asiatic company.

The vessel sailed from Buenos Aires for Melbourne last December 14, in ballast. She carried a crew of fifty men and fifty cadets from among prominent families in Denmark.

The Kobenhavn is 3,901 tons gross and is equipped with radio apparatus and auxiliary engines. The fact that, despite her radio, no message has been picked up, was seen by Jensen as an indication of another sea tragedy.

Dancing Master Is Candidate Of British Labor

BY THOMAS H. CAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON, May 7.—The Labor candidate in Hereford is Henry Cooper, director of a dancing academy in the west end of London. Cooper claims he taught the Prince of Wales how to dance. It is not suggested, of course, that he will attempt to make political capital of this interesting distinction. In any event Hereford is one of the comparatively few ridings where the male electors still outnumber the women, the figures being 36,984 men and 19,860 women. In 1924 S. Roberts, Conservative, was elected with a majority of 4,606 over J. H. Whitehouse, Liberal.

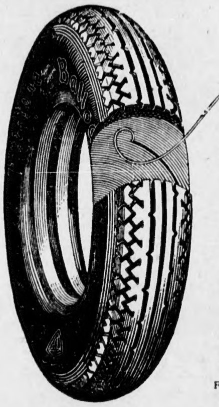
Firestone
Tires Hold All Records



THE GREATEST enemy to tire life is internal heat and friction — generated within the tire by the cords chafing against each other. Firestone has solved this with the patented exclusive Gum-Dipping process.

In this extra process, every cord passes through liquid rubber which saturates every fibre in every strand and insulates every part of the cord with pure rubber. This is the only known method which carries the liquid rubber to the innermost parts of the cords and unifies the whole structure of the tire . . . the result—these tires hold all records for safety, mileage and endurance.

The Charleston Champion

The Bulletin's Daily Short Story From Real Life

By B. VLADMIR BERMAN

THE PRINCIPAL CHARACTER IN "THE CHARLESTON CHAMPION."

HERMAN PATAGONIA returns to Greenwich Village after an absence of ten years. He has spent those years up in the Frivolous Forties obtaining color for stories he intends to write. He finds that the Village has changed. Gone jazz-mad. And if he intends to associate with old friends — well, he must dance, dance often and late.

"Yes, sir, that's my wearkness now!" piped the animated watercolor.

After some ten years in the cabarets and dance halls of the new Tenderloin beyond 42nd Street, Herman Patagonia, writer, went back to his den in Greenwich Village, opened the corroding lock with the rusty key that in all that time had not come out of the flap pocket in his wallet, and entered the cobwebbed apartment.

"Phew — what soot!" exclaimed the distressed Herman as he tossed himself into the rickety rocker and brought up an enormous cloud of dust.

As he climbed the stairs to his little flat, Herman was hopeful, but now in the midst of this grime he wondered whether that could portend the ready success he anticipated.

The chair Herman found himself in was old-fashioned when he abandoned the Village to go beyond the Pale of Fourteenth Street to see how the other Nine-Tenths lived, and it was old-fashioned now, too. And in a more objectionable way, for the craze for relics of the sort had passed. This Herman knew through an indirect contact he had maintained with such things by reading the magazines he found lying about the cabinet loungese during his exile.

But this was hardly the time for unhappy philosophizing. It was time for action, work.

"Now is the tim4 for ALL goor men so come to the aid 4f theiY party."

Herman's first essay on his typewriter since he had shut it down the third year of the Great War was interrupted by the entrance of the pouchy owner of the premises, one Oscar Bloom who seemed unchanged save that he was a bit more excited than usual.

"You vuz vun vize boid!" the landlord blustered as he began belaboring Herman for luring him into so questionable a bargain as leasing the studio for ten years flat.

Broken Threads

"Get out, Mr. Bloom," shouted Herman impatiently. "Come back tomorrow if you want to and I'll discuss the matter then and make whatever adjudications are necessary. But I'm very busy now, trying to piece together the broken threads of my life."

Yes, it was quite a job, Herman saw, as he became aware of vague, unpleasant changes in the air all about him, to tie together once more those threads snipped a decade ago when Herman felt the divine urge to see how the other fractions lived.

In that distant marital time Herman had applied for war service, like all patriotic youths, but an over-stringest major turned him down because of supposed dim-sightedness. Herman tried again at another station and was rejected for some imaginary heart defect that since had given him the slightest inkling of existence. Herman had tried as hard as any one could be expected and no one could accuse him of belonging to that hateful class known then as "slackers." However literary his motives, Herman had sought to join America in its crusade for righteousness and no one could censure if he failed.

But Herman was still more determined to see how the other nine-tenths lived and there was no deterring him. If he could not see the other fractions at far, he could see them in the dance halls. In these there was life to be observed, as much, perhaps, as even on the battlefields.

Life did not refuse contact with itself to Herman in the dance halls. And, while all his friends were overseas getting ready to come back and write the 987,246 histories and commentaries on the world's greatest conflagration of modern times, Herman surreptitiously busied himself stocking away data and experience for a series of thrilling life stories to be written when his self-imposed banishment to the dance halls and cabarets was terminated.

Herman sat before his typewriter trying to write. Again he clicked his keys and this time noted an improvement, although not a wholly satisfying one, over his first essay. He achieved a perfect draft of "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party."

"Not so bad," mused Herman minutely examining the fresh copy. "But perhaps not quite the thing to go away for and bring back after ten years of careful study." Yes, his years in the toils must be more productive.

"I will write something big, strong, vital," Herman posed to himself. "Something to show the world that Herman Patagonia has lived."

But woo the spirits of his ancient mill as he might they gave forth none of the longed-for brilliances Herman sought, and at last, in disgust, he bounced from his chair and fled his den.

"This is merely an impasse that comes to every man of letters after too close application to an idea," Herman consoled himself. "But I shall get by it presently. Meanwhile I'll just walk the streets of the village and refresh myself with memories of the glorious past. Then, reinforced, invigorated, I shall go back to my sanctuary and write the rare fruits of ten years' devotion to an idea."

"Hello, Hermie!"

Herman's reverie was arrested by a shrill voice, a feminine one, a worldly one; one hardly out of Pater or even Dickens. He felt a tap at his shoulder and, turning about, looked at the smiling face of an impish bob-haired young woman, wearing a rakishly-tilted hat and blazing turtle-necked sweater. It was a face that for all its youthful appeal bore tints that made it look more like a futuristic water-color than anything else in the world.

"Yes, sir — that's my weakness now!" piped the animated water-color.

Herman was glued to the ground. For a moment he was speechless. "Felice!" he gasped when at last he had regained command of words.

"Yes — Felice — who'djer think it wuz? Taking me to dance?"

"What are you doing down here?" Herman asked, still too surprised and dismayed for any but banal phrases.

"Wotcher think I'm doin'? Come to shake a wicked limb. Best jazz in town down here."

"But, Felice . . . do get out of here. This is the Village . . . Greenwich Village! This is no place for—"

"Say, I like your noive!" piped the sprightly nympth. "Where do you get that stuff? Comin' along? If not clear the path—"

"Listen, Felice. This isn't uptown. This is the Village — the Village hallowed with memories of countless litterateurs who have placed American belles-lettres on a par, or pretty nearly on a par, with the greatest literatures of all the world. But there is still work to be done. . . . Yes, I admit I did dance with you on several occasions in Roseland, Moulin Rouge, Palais Royal, La Guinan's and such places, living and gone, but that was uptown. This, however, is the Village, dear old celebrated Greenwich Village, the center of America's civilization, the heart of our native intellectualism . . . literal—."

In a Daze

"Say Boob, what's come over you? Ain't you gonna take me to dance? Well, never mind — ther's Charlie Sweeney over there — Hey Charley!" she called to a red-haired, freckle-faced youth loitering at the corner. "Wait for me while I give this gazaboo the slip. We'll hop to the Jolly Bears."

Herman Patagonia was a bewildered enigma watching the crowds of young men and young women staggering by him at the corner of 41st Street and 6th Avenue.

Herman rubbed his eyes the better to see. But the mists grew. Young people were shambling through the streets, singing and shouting, on their way to the noisy cafes that were now blaring forth familiar dance tunes.

"Is this the Village — the dear old Village?" he rubbed his eyes, wondering if he had not been transported uptown suddenly. "There must be some mistake! But in case there isn't, I'll need something to help me bear up."

Herman walked back to his chambers, gulped the contents of a flask, glanced wonderingly at his typewriter — and fared forth again.

The rushing crowds pushed by him rudely on their way to the shadowy dance places.

"O, this cannot be. O, glorious Apollo, this cannot be! This is not all the Village has become. This must be but one side of it. There must be another — the good, solid writers—"

But even as he uttered these words, Herman was startled beyond words as he saw running past him the figures of Darius Dostolevsky, Harry de Maupassant, Marion Millay, Hippolyte Hecht, Gilda von Hoffenhoven, and scores more of the bearers of some of the most edifying names in modern American letters — hurrying by him to be swallowed up in the Village danceterias!

In a daze Herman wandered about the streets. At last he came to a place where they didn't dance and he went in. There was not majordomo here who had to be cajoled with ebullient green for a choice seat. The cafe was deserted. Herman had his choice and dropped into a place in the corner.

"Literature?" repeated the foreign person who served illicit refreshments. He glared a moment, uncomprehending. Then, "Ah, yes. She is dead here in the Village, everywhere. What is she good for now? People dance. There is no room for at literature—bah! Who—Joe Kipling—the poetissimo? No, he don't come here no more. Over in Jolly Bears I tink."

Reluctantly Herman Patagonia, the forlorn writer, entered the Jolly Bears.

In the dim light Herman recognized a few familiar figures now grown vaguely older, or grotesquely younger, trying to execute dance steps more intricate than any he ever encountered in all his meanderings uptown. No one paid the least attention to the newcomer. Herman slumped into a seat and ordered something to help him with his mournful ruminations.

The tintillations of the colored band, however, soon worked their insidious way into Herman's blood, infecting him so, he soon forgot he was a writer with a great mission and the big work that awaited his pleasure.

Herman knew only that here the jazzy fox-trots and Charleston numbers were the zippiest he had heard in time out of mind. Before he realized what he was doing, he seized Maggie Shay, one of the most celebrated free verse poets of pre-war Bohemia, away from Joe Beauchamps, the ferocious psyco-analyst and reeled across the floor with her.

Before the number was over young Felice excused herself from her freckle-faced partner to come over and implore Herman for the next Charleston.

And long before closing time Herman was the cavalier of the evening. By all the females, readily, and by all the males, grudgingly, he was acknowledged the greatest Charleston dancer the Village had seen since stepping became a major occupation in America's Latin quarter. Herman was beseiged for dances from all sides.

The next day when Mr. Bloom came to resume the discussion of his supposed grievance, Herman told him he could have his typewriter, his thesaurus and leather-bound "150,000 Misspelled Words" to make up for past indebtedness, and the ancient studio for a more lucrative tennant. Herman had paid a deposit on the flat above the Jolly Bears so he would lose no time in getting to the dance place.

As Herman was dressing, a reporter of the Greenwich Village Courier came and asked him to account for his proficiency and success.

"Well, I'll tell you. It's this way," said Herman striking a pose far removed from that I've been a newspaper interviewer myself once upon a time, but rather distinctly terpsichorean.

A Prophet

"Ten years ago when every one was looking for material for war books, I went into the dance halls and cabarets and applied myself intensively. I knew what the post-war reactions would be and qualified myself for the intricate dance steps of today. That's why I'm the great dancer I am."

"Mr. Ritzenstein of the Rolling Rumblers says he'll pay you $200 a week to do a few steps at his place every midnight? May I state in my paper that you'll accept."

"Maybe I shall and maybe I shan't" Herman replied languidly, as he plastered his evenly-parted raven locks with Stick-to. "But you'll have to excuse me now. I have to get a moving van."

The papers called Herman a far-sighted man, a prophet in his generation, and he easily won the non-stop open-air Crarleston competition held on Washington's birthday in Sheridan Square.

GREEN PEAS

Fresh peas should be put into cold water for about 15 minutes before cooking. Put a tiny pinch of soda in the water you cover the bottom of the pan with and cover them with either their own leaves and stalks or with leaves of lettuce. Very little water is needed for this way of cooking and the peas are delicious and very green.

The Mirror of the Mode

By MARY MARSHALL

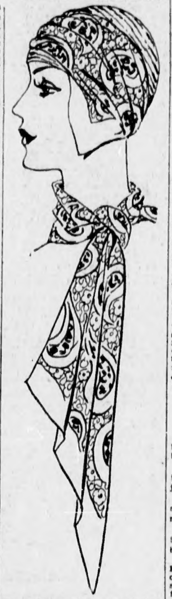
Just one spring day of summer's heat shows us how inadequate is the wardrobe that does not include a plentiful supply of scarfs, for as soon as a woman is persuaded to lay aside her coat she feels the need of some sort of neck accessory that will make the coatless dress seem suitable for the street.

Fox fur scarfs have appeared in profusion, worn hardly for warmth but on warmer days. They are worn resting on one shoulder and hanging down on the arm at the other side, they are pushed back off the shoulders and sometimes merely carried hung over the arm. There are a dozen ways at least of wearing a silk scarf as an accessory of the street frock without a coat. The important thing is to have a scarf that really is part of the ensemble.

Practically all the French milliners have made hats with scarfs to match and the idea is one that has been taken up with considerable enhtusiasm here. Sometimes the material used for the hat will actually appear on the scarf. Perhaps a second scarf will be used to form the crown drapery of the hat. Sometimes the connection is more subtle. Reboux shows a hat of gray felt with a band of ribbon of rose and pink and accompanies it with a scarf made of joined narrow bands of light pink, gray and lavendar crepe de chine.

A clever hat and scarf set consist of a navy-blue felt hat of the close bonnet sort, with an appliqueed plume shaped ornament of navy-blue georgette applied with gold thread. There is a scarf of navy-blue georgette finished around the edge with gold thread.

For warm weather wear there are fairly wide brimmed hats of straw or hair—with brim lined sometimes with delicately figured georgette or chiffon and sometimes some of the figured lining material is also used to make a floating scarf for neck and shoulders.



Two matching scarfs are used here with smart effect. One is tied at one end around the neck and the other is used to drape a small straw turban, the corner of the handkerchief forming an ear tab at one side.

Woman President is Elected by Nation-Wide Teacher Union

Canadian Press

LONDON, May 7.—The president for the diamond jubilee next year of the National Union of Teachers is to be a woman, Mrs. Leah Manning, of Cambridge.

"I shall be the fourth woman president in 60 years," says Mrs. Manning. "This does not mean that the women have not been allowed a fair share of the honors and responsibilities of office. The women are in a majority in the union and, in point of voting power, have the matter in their own hands. The National Union of Teachers is one of the best instances of the way in which both sexes can and do work happily and successfully together in national interests."

Mrs. Manning is headmistress of the Open-Air School at Cambridge and predicts that "in the not distant future we shall see open-air schools established as the normal schools of the country." She was made justice of the peace for Cambridge in the first list of women justices in the country, has done a great deal of public speaking and lecturing. The one hobby for which she can find any time is amateur acting.

Canada Will Lead Way At Geneva Says Mary Ellen Smith

Prominent British Columbia Parliamentarian Has Great Faith in New Generation of Women

Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith, first woman cabinet minister in the British Empire, and for 12 years a prominent figure in British Columbia parliamentary circles, feels that when she arrives at the International Conference in Geneva in June she will find that Canada has led the way in the vital matters of world importance that will be discussed there. Such was her opinion as expressed upon her arrival in Edmonton this morning, in the course of her trip from Vancouver to Switzerland. Forty-seven nations will be represented at the gathering, which will coincide the meeting of the League of Nations, and child welfare, international social health and welfare, education, and problems of international labor will be discussed.

"There are yet great heights to climb, however," she said, looking as if into a future which held great possibilities.

The famous Canadian spoke with shining eyes of the new generation.

"I like to see these young girls going to college, and writing their examinations, and taking their honors side by side with the boys. Educated with the same viewpoint, given the same opportunity, what will the new generation of women not do?" she asked.

Equality Inevitable

Mrs. Smith spoke of the absolute equality of man and woman in public life as an inevitable condition of the future. She felt that there was still considerable distance to go, however.

"Woman is the home maker and home keeper," she said, "and man is the breadearner and provider. Nature has made a wonderful provision in giving the mother the protection of her household."

Because of this great charge Mrs. Smith felt that women could be the peacemakers of earth in a very real sense. By forgetting politics and differences and thinking peace in the broadest sense, women could actually avert wars, she said.

Club women today are undergoing a very great change in attitude, said Mrs. Smith. Club women were eager to do everything to promote a healthy spirit of unity. Still, there is considerable room for growth. Her excellent qualifications as an organizer and a money maker, as shown for generations in church work, had fitted woman for public life. While Mrs. Smith felt that in smaller groups and organizations her greatest work is done in wholly feminine organizations she considered that the national viewpoint should be the same for men and women.

"I have always contended that brains are sexless," she said, smiling.

For all her modern ideas and the staunch support she has given to suffrage and other women's causes, Mrs. Smith thinks that the home life is the backbone of the nation, and must be guarded.

Mrs. Smith is leaving this evening for the east.

Arranging For Fall Bazaar

Members of St. Anthony's Altar Society met on Monday afternoon in the parish hall when arrangements were made for the fall bazaar. Reports by the various captains showed the circles to be busy and enthusiastic.

Magistrate Murphy Upholds Heredity

Magistrate Emily Murphy will take the public platform next week when she will uphold the affirmative of "Resolved, that Heredity Has a Greater Effect on Character than Environment." With her will be Mr. J. J. Frawley, solicitor of the Attorney General's department. On the side of environment stand Mrs. E. T. Bishop, public school board member, and Mr. J. T. Tighe. The debate is being held under the auspices of St. Joseph's Ladies' Aid in the Separate School Hall on Friday evening, May 17.

Tea Talk

Mary Ellen Smith arrived in town this morning from Vancouver, a happy friendly woman who greeted the world at large with one of her inimitable smiles. All this in spite of the fact that in the excitement of farewells she overlooked the more or less important item of checking her luggage, and carried a handbag with a little box, her entire stock in hand.

This morning between interviews and photographers and friends she went shopping......but on the train a feminine friend "shared up" the necessaries of travel. Mrs. Smith was not perturbed, however, by such a little matter. Had there not been an occasion, not so many months ago, when she was the first woman in the Empire to occupy the speaker's chair in the British Columbia house? And had not an absent minded member addressed her as "Mr. Speaker?" to the accompaniment of much amusement from the floor and galleries?

Gallantly correcting himself and paying a tribute to Mrs. Smith he carried on, however, and used "Madam Speaker" from that time forward.

Mrs. Smith learned suffrage from her grandmother's knee and a great many other things as well. One could hardly find her behind a bower of roses and forget-me-nots, presented by Vancouver friends as she took the Canadian National for the east on her way to Geneva the other day. When she emerged from the shower of bouquets Mary Ellen Smith presented them to the dining car steward so that the other passengers might enjoy their fragrance and color.

Arriving in Edmonton she found that they had been gathered up to be presented to her. But having discovered, in that friendly manner of hers, that the steward had a very sick brother in an Edmonton hospital, who was a great admirer of hers, she sent the flowers to him.

So that today one man who cannot see and hear the woman parliamentarian, can enjoy her thoughtfulness and the fragrance of her blossoms.

Miss Agnes Laut, the noted author will be in town this summer on her way to Jasper, where she will spend some time at her cabin on the shores of Lake Edith, according to word received in the city today. Miss Laut, is at present at her home "Wildwood Place", Wassaic, New York having spent the early part of the winter in Washington, D.C..

She is one of the many expatriated Canadian women who have made a great success in the republic to the south but she frequently returns to Canada and many Edmontonians have happy memories of being entertained at her delightful cabin on Lake Edith. A granddaughter of the late Rev. George Laut, D.D., principal of Queen's University, the writer was taken to Winnipeg when a child. After attending the University of Manitoba she became an editorial writer on the Winnipeg Free Press and steadily broadened her sphere until at present she is one of the best known women writers of the continent, her books on Canada being especially well known.

Miss Laut's talents were summed up by the late Lord Strathcona when he described her as "A woman, not only with ideas but also with the powers of giving expression to them."

Mrs. W. S. Swaggert of Calgary, Mrs. P. B. Hooper of Dunstable, Dr. B. C. Claunch of Monterey, California; Mrs. and Mrs. E. E. Henderson of Winnipeg are visitors in town, guests at the Macdonald.

Charming Shanghai Visitor Tells of Colorful Orient

Life Very Gay in Foreign Colonies of Shanghai and Hankow

All the charm of an English colony in a far off land, is to be found in Shanghai, and in Hankow, China, where Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Grant, visitors in Edmonton on Monday, have spent the last five years. Mrs. Grant is a charming Englishwoman who went from London to Shanghai, and found life among the "foreigners" there very happy indeed. Later, in Hankow she joined a new colony, and was soon a member of the gay social set that golfs, rides, swims and plays tennis.

The Anglo-Saxon bond is very strong in China, and life is gay and colorful among Britishers and Americans, with a flash of military uniforms at the navy and army balls, and the bright colors of women's summer things at tea dances in the large American hotels.

Chinese Women Go Out Now

Five years ago one did not find the Chinese women at these larger American and British affairs. Modern times have brought them social as well as professional emancipation and now one finds a very smart and very attractive Chinese woman with her escort at many of the tea dances and parties. Only at the very formal affairs does one find her differently gowned than her fair-skinned sisters, for her evening gown is made with a high neck, and usually with short sleeves, albeit the color and material is as rich and gay as that in any of those worn by the "foreigners".

In Hankow, Mr. and Mrs. Grant were members of the "Race Club," where the English-speaking people of the city gathered for tennis, golf, swimming and all sorts of sports and amusement. The beautiful flowering shrubs and exotic blossoms of the Orient make this large country club a bower of beauty and color. Golf, with the almond blossoms blowing; swimming, with cherry blooms crowding around the pool; riding, with the breath of a thousand flower fragrances on one's nostrils. Hankow had many beauties to offer.

Met Little Trouble

In the streets one still finds many Chinese women in their colorful native costumes. During the recent trouble the wives of foreigners found little difficulty, if they kept to the main thoroughfares and the better-known districts. Mrs. Grant encountered no difficulties, and had no trouble with her Chinese servants, although foreign women who insisted on going into the native quarters sometimes met with harm, and in many homes servants became difficult. Today there is a much better spirit between the foreigners and the Chinese people, Mrs. Grant feels, although the presence of army and navy reserves is a decided comfort.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant are on their way to England, where they will spend several months holidaying, later returning to Hankow. They visited Mr. Grant's brother, Mr. John Grant, in the city on Monday.

Young Edmonton Girl Is Graduated From Sioux Falls College

Miss Orena Cooper, who previous to her enrollment at Sioux Falls college, Sioux Falls, South Dakota, resided at Edmonton, and who still has a great many friends in the city, received mention in the Annual recently published by her school for a great number of school activities in which she has taken part. Her father resided at Edmonton until last year when he moved to a new location.

On the staff of the book itself Miss Cooper had the position of art editor. In this position it was her task to see to the mounting of all the pictures used in the book. She was well fitted for this work as she has a great deal of natural ability and she had the experience of serving for a year as art editor on the Stylus, the official school newspaper.

She has been very active in other extra-curricular activities also. She served as president of her class during the past year and was also secretary of the school Y.W.C.A. Miss Cooper was a member of the Eunician Literary Society at the school and chairman of the program committee for the Sioux Literary Society. She is the recipient of a Purple Feather which is given to a few of the students of the school in recognition of especially meritorious service to the school.

Mother Doesn't Know Best When It Comes To Modern Sophistication In Dining

Is Woman Too Independent in Public Eating Places?

By ALLENE SUMNER

They sat opposite me in the limited diner, obviously mother and daughter. The daughter, smartly tailored, very much a woman of the world, a bit bored at the ordeal of ordering, handling the menu with expensively manicured fingers, challenging the waiter to "see that the fruit is well-iced."

The mother was as obviously not a woman of the world; awed and pleased and very conscious of the fun of breakfasting on the limited, with daughter both amused and even embarrassed in a sophisticated way at her mother's evident provincialism.

A most obsequious waiter bore in the grapefruit. The golden halves were resting on glossy hothouse violet leaves which, in turn, were topping scoopfuls of crushed ice in deep silver bowls. He also bore in two dainty gold-edged plates, doily-dressed, and proceeded to transfer the fruit from the ice-bedded bowls to the plates.

Knowing Gal!

Daughter stopped him with an imperious gesture, proceeding to eat her fruit from the bowl, while her mother meekly submitted to the transfer to the plate. When the waiter had gone daughter waxed most articulate on what she described as "the asinine unnecessary gestures in diner or hotel eating."

"It's perfectly obvious," she said, "that this fruit should be eaten from the dish with the ice in it rather than taken from the ice onto a warm plate. Why, then, in the name of Tomfoolery submit to some commercial concern's idea of what is good form? Look at these scrambled eggs; they bring them in on a silver platter, but insist that they be taken off onto a plate, even though the food gets cold in the transfer."

"But all those dishes look nice, anyway," commented her mother, gazing at her empty ice bowl with the violet leaves atop.

Daughter scorned, too, the little salver of assorted mints and gold-tipped cigarets passed with the finger bowl, but mother took her's as happy as a child, while again sophisticated daughter babbled of the insane silly gestures of commercial "swank."

The Compensation

Here was a vivid example of the reactions of two utterly diverse types of women—the woman who had lived a scrimpy, provincial life, happy as a child over the very "inanities" which her too-experienced daughter scorned.

It gave one food for thought about this thing known as the law of compensation; a realization that too complete experience brought its own price of satiety and blunted appreciations, whereas too little had its compensation of real appreciation of the smallest experience—even to unnecessary plates with the morning grapefruit.

A digressive thought, too, was the realization of the carpsome, petty attitude of the mass of today's women on their own. I watched them in action in the restaurant of a woman's hotel the other night. Men, for instance, are supposed to be "picky" about their food, but I never saw so many plates of roast beef and lamb chops dispatched back to the kitchen pronto, because the fair orderer insisted the meat was over or underdone. I never heard such universal attempts to order the table d'hote dinner but to substitute this vegetable or that meat from the other menu.

Is woman's fairly new independence too much for her? Is she still so unaccustomed to it that she fights to force the fact of its evistence upon the world at large, even if this fight takes the form of nothing more than sending her meal back to the kitchen?

Vanity Can Survive the Shock of the First Gray Hair, of Crow's Feet and a Double Chin, But a Woman's Ego is Definitely Squashed When She Knows She Looks Old to Others

Not long ago the newspapers told the story of a woman who attempted suicide because in going through an old trunk she came across a photograph of herself taken when she was a girl, and the contrast was so great between it and herself that it drove her to desperation. She looked at the picture of this slim, lithe, young creature with starry eyes and curling locks and from it her own reflection in the mirror, which showed a fat old woman in spectacles and with lanky hair, and she got up and went into the kitchen and reached down the rough-on-rats bottle.

A group of women who were—well, not flappers—were discussing, with sympathy, this peculiarly feminine reaction to the shock of seeing oneself as one used to be, for every woman admitted she had had a similar impulse under similar circumstances, and then, with a twisted smile on their lips, they began to tell of that awful moment that comes to every woman when she suddenly realizes how she looks to other people, and that they no longer see her as young and beautiful.

Of course, before that there has been the tragedy of the first gray hair. And one has decided to have facial massages regularly, not that those little lines at the corners of the eyes really show, or because the face has begun to sag, but just because it rests one so. And one has begun that awful nightmare of counting one's calories, but one has deluded oneself with the idea that these were secrets between one and one's soul, and that nobody noticed that one wasn't still sweet and 20.

Then out of the blue the stroke falls. Some tactless hand drops a bomb that shatters all of one's little complacencies, and gives one a closeup of how one looks to the casual observer, and it is a jolt that jars a woman from centre to circumference, and she is never the same again.

"I'll never forget how I got my bad news that I looked like an old woman," said one woman. "I am small and I was then thin, so I had what we would now call a boyish figure. True, my hair was turning gray, but I reflected that many people have prematurely white hair, so that didn't really date a person, and as I am still as light on my feet as a child and filled with an intense enjoyment of life, it had positively never occurred to me that anybody could think of me as being old.

"Well, my awakening came on a railway journey. In the section opposite mine was a tired and sickly young woman with a wan and sickly little baby that fretted and cried continually until the poor mother was at the point of exhaustion. Filled with pity for her I went over and asked her to let me take care of the baby while she freshened herself up and got some luncheon, which she was only too glad to do.

"The baby was contented with me and I kept it for a couple of hours, and at last, restored by food and a nap and a bath, the mother came over to get the child, and wishing to say something real nice and flattering and appreciative to me, she held out her hands to the child and said:

" 'Who's got you, Baby? Has Grandma got you? And I pledge you my word that nothing but the grace of God kept me from throwing that baby out of the window. Anyway, I staggered off the train at the end of my destination a broken old woman that the porter had to help off."

"My rude awakening came from an old sweetheart," said another woman. "I hadn't seen John for 20 years. Not since he went away to die of a broken heart when I refused him for the last time, and so when I knew I was to meet him again I dolled myself up in my most becoming clothes, and took off my eyeglasses, and as I took my last peek in my vanity and put another dab of powder on my nose and a fresh line of lipstick, I just knew that I hadn't changed a particle.

"But John had. He was fat and paunchy and bald-headed and triple-chinned, and he took off his spectacles, and put on a stronger pair to give me the once over. And after a bit, giving him the smile that he used to find so irresistible, I said:

" 'John, do you think I have changed? Would you have known me anywhere? To which he replied: 'Lord, yes; you certainly have altered. I never would have known you in the world. Why, when you were a girl you were the prettiest thing I ever saw!' "

"A sister woman dealt the lethal blow to my vanity," said a third woman. "My husband died when I was very young, and I considered myself a fascinating and alluring young widow who might be dangerous to any man's peace of mind. I was staying at a resort hotel at a resort in Europe at which there was a giddy young girl who was much gossiped about. One day she came to me and exclaimed: 'Oh, Mrs. X, how I wish I was like you, so old and plain that no man would ever be attracted to me and nobody would ever think about a man having an affair with me!' "

"It is Heaven's mercy to us that we can't see ourselves as others see us," said the fourth woman, "a fact that I had forcibly impressed upon me last summer when I met an old gentleman who, many years before, had visited my home town. He kept asking me if I knew a girl, of my own name, whom he had met and whom he described as a young person of ravishing charms. Tickled pink, I exclaimed: 'Why, I am that girl! How wonderful of you to remember me!'

" 'Nonsense,' he cried testily, 'not at all. You don't look like her in the least. Why, she was perfectly beautiful and had the loveliest complexion and the most perfect figure I ever saw.' Can you tie that? And I, who pride myself on still being a perfect 38 and have spent a million dollars more or less on keeping the skin you love to touch."

"A young girl gave me my knockout," said the fifth woman, "and she was such a darling and she was trying so hard to be polite to one she obviously regarded as a Lady Methuselah and to make interesting conversation with an ancient. She said to me: 'Mrs. B., will you please tell me something about the olden times? What did people do in those days?' And I was kidding myself that I looked like one of the younger generation myself."

"Isn't it funny," said the first woman, "how we all want to be thought young and how we hate for people to tell us that we look old? Yet no woman ever knows real happiness until after she is 50 years old and doesn't care who knows it."

Milady Beautiful

BEAUTY QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Whitening the Skin

Dear Miss Leeds—(1) What will make the skin of the body, face and neck white? Will oatmeal bags do so? (2) How can I get rid of goose pimples on legs and thighs? (3) Will milk bleach the skin?

EMELYN.

Answer—(1) The skin on the body is usually lighter in color than that on the face, neck and hands because the body is protected by clothing from the effects of sun and wind. You cannot bleach your skin to a shade lighter than its natural tint, but you can remove tan from it, thus restoring the original shade. The oatmeal baks have a tendency to soften and soothe the skin, but do not bleach it.

Buttermilk is a good mild bleach for face and neck. Mix it to a paste with oatmeal, oatmeal, cornmeal or barley flour and spread it on the skin after the latter has been thoroughly washed and dried. Leave the pack on for an hour. There are many bleaching preparations on the market, but let me warn you against using any about which extravagant claims are made. Avoid skin-peeling preparations because there is danger of poisoning from their use. (2) Scrub the goose pimples with a stiff bath brush and plenty of warm water and soap every night. Rinse well. Dry by rubbing hard with a turkish towel. If the skin seems tender, rub a little hand lotion into it. (3) Sour milk is a mild bleach.

Lines Under the Eyes

Deear Miss Leeds—I am a working girl 17 years old and I weigh 98 pounds. What causes heavy lines under my eyes? How can I have a nice skin?

GEORGINA.

Answer—I think your trouble is underweight, although you have not stated your height. If you are 5 feet 2 inches tall you should weigh about 114 pounds. You cannot have a good complexion so long as your body is undernourished. The lines under your eyes may be due to underweight or to eyestrain, lack of sufficient sleep or some internal disorder.

How to Get Fat

Dear Miss Leeds—I am 21 years old, 5 feet 1½ inches tall and weigh 102 pounds. How can I get fat?

IVY.

Answer—The average weight for your age and height is between 116 and 119 pounds. Persistent underweight is sometimes due to diseased tonsils or adenoids or to bad teeth. Have a doctor examine you to see what is the underlying cause. If there is no diseased condition present I think you may build up your weight by eating more fattening foods. Have three square meals a day and drink a glassful of milk in the middle of the forenoon, in the afternoon and again just before you go to bed at night.

For breakfast you might have fruit, cereal with cream and sugar, poached eggs on toast, bread and butter and a cup of hot chocolate malted milk. For lunch you might have cheese sandwiches, cream of potato soup, a fruit salad, pudding and a glass of milk. For dinner your menu may include cream soup, a serving of meat, potato or rice, spinach, canned corn or peas, a vegetable gelatine salad, bread and butter, peach shortcake and a glass of milk. Ice cream is good for you also. Be sure to sleep at least eight hours a night. Exercise outdoors daily.

Little Stories For Bedtime

Chatterer Jumps For His Life

By THORNTON BURGESS (Copyright)

It isn't very often that Chatterer the Red Squirrel knows fear. That is one reason that he is so often impudent and saucy. But once in a while a great fear takes possession of him, as when he knows that Shadow the Weasel is looking for him. You see he knows that Shadow can go wherever he can go. There are very few of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows who do not know fear at some time or other, but it comes to Chatterer as seldom as to any one because he is very sure of himself and his ability to hode or run away from danger.

But now as he clung to a little branch near the top of a tall pine tree in the Green Forest and looked down at the big sharp teeth of Buster Bear drawing nearer and nearer, and listening to the deep, angry howls that made his hair stand on end, Chatterer was too frightened to think. If only he had kept his tongue still instead of saying hateful things to Buster Bear! If he had known that Buster could climb a tree! If only he had chosen a tree near enough to other trees for him to jump across! But he had said hateful things, he had chosen to sit in a tree which stood quite by itself, and Buster Bear could climb. Chatterer was in the worst kind of trouble, and there was no one to blame but himself. That is usually the case with those who get into trouble.

Nearer and Nearer Came Buster Bear and Deeper and Angrier Sounded His Voice.

Nearer and nearer came Buster Bear and deeper and angrier sounded his voice. Chatterer gave a little frightened gasp and looked this way and looked that way. What should he do? What could he do? The ground seemed such a terrible distance below. If only he had wings like Sammy Jay! But he hadn't.

"Gr-r-r-r!" growled Buster Bear "I'll teach you manners! I'l lteach you to treat your betters with respect! I'll swallow you whole, that's what I'll do Gr-r-r!"

"Oh!' cried Chatterer.

"Gr-r-r-r!" I'll eat you all up to the last hair on your tail!" growled Buster, scrambling a little nearer.

"Oh! Oh!" cried Chatterer, and ran out to the very tip of the little branch to which he had been clinging. Now if Chatterer had only known it Buster Bear couldn't reach him way up there because the tre was too small at the top for such a big follow like Buster. But Chatterer didn't think of that. He gave one more frightened look down at those big teeth, then he shut his eyes and jumped—jumped straight out for the far away ground!

It was a long, long, long way down to the ground, and it certainly looked as if such a little fellow as Chatterer must be killed by such a jump. But Chatterer had learned from Old Mother Nature that she had given him certain things to help him at just such times and one of them is the power to spread himself very flat. He did it now. He spread his arms and legs out just as far as he could and that kept him from falling as fast and as hard as he otherwise would have, because being spread out so flat that way the air held him up a little. And then there was his tail, that funny little tail he is so fond of jerking when he scolds. This helped him, too. It helped him keep his balance and keep from turning over and over.

Down, down, down he sailed and landed on his feet. Of course he hit the ground pretty hard and for just a second he quite lost his breath. But it was only for a second and then he was scurrying off as fast as a frightened squirrel could. Buster Bear watched him and grinned.

"I didn't catch him that time," he growled, "but I guess I gave him a good fright and taught him a lesson."

KEEPING SPINACH

If you cook spinach carefully and drain all the water the first minute it tests tender, you can keep it several hours or even days. To reheat, put it carefully in a pan to which butter and a few teaspoonfuls of water have been added. This will let it steam hot without burning.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

FAVORITISM MAKES FOR FAMILY QUARRELS

It is difficult for parents not to show favoritism, however vigorously they may deny this accusation. It isn't favoritism, they assert, that makes them keep silent when John demands and gets the wagon away from his weaker sister; not favoritism when they smack Sue good and hard because she insisted on having her own paints instead of letting baby throw them around the room as he is intent on doing.

One reader wrote me of an exaggerated case of favoritism in which an older boy was given all the treats and all the treats and all the favors in the family because unless he got them he made everyone miserable by his temper tantrus. The younger sister being good-natured and pliable, had to "give in" always. If sister tried to play with a common toy she had to give it up. If she sat in a chair which he preferred (and he often preferred it only because she was sitting in it), she immediately had to change chairs.

Each Victory Hurts Spoiled Child

The results of such ill-won victories, when the partial parent takes a hand in upholding the boy's demands, are just so many spurs to more and more selfish demands. His wants and desires must be gratified because otherwise the household is made miserable. But what about the other child, she who has to give in? She will shortly discover that having a temper tantrum is an excellent method of getting one's own way. She will learn to pull at toys and scream until she gets what she wants. The outcome of such behavior is evident. The home will become a bedlam. Each day will see the development of a screaming contest, in which the one with the loudest lungs is victorious. Then the mother throws up her hands in despair. How can she manage such children when neither will ever give in?

Make Rules—and Keep Them

In every household there should be iron-clad rules that hold for baby as well as the older child. Each has his own toys. Common toys must be shared, and they cannot be taken from a child so long as he is using them. Chairs, the property of the whole family, are the property of none. If sister is using a chair she can use it unmolested. If brother wants it he can have it at the next meal, provided he thinks of it in time. If this doesn't work, paste the child's name on the back of his own chair and insist that he use that and that only.

Things seldom reach such a hideous state in a family if the children have been used to fair treatment. We can't blame the older child for rebelling when he has to constantly give in to a "grabby" younger child, just because the child is younger. Age doesn't count, for if there is a real difference in ages, the older child's toys will not be similar to the younger one's and each should have his own toys to use without fear they will be snatched from him.

The only method which develops unselfishness in families is to enforce each child's rights to his own things. Then, after having enjoyed possession, he goes on to the next step and enjoys sharing them. He never learns this joy when it is forced upon him at a stage when he is not ready for it.

Two Clever Women Manage Interesting Edmonton Enterprise

Smart Outfits Woven and Made at Warp and Woof Shoppe

Hand woven coats, suits and frocks which are having such a vogue in Paris this season, are now being worn by Edmonton women and the unique feature of these smart outfits is that they are fashioned of materials which are made in this city. At the Warp and Woof Shoppe, Jasper avenue west, the complete garment is made and the woollen yarn becomes a smart, stunning costume for street wear.

While automobiles and street cars rush by outside the door, inside the Warp and Woof Shoppe two looms are kept busy and the ancient art of weaving thrives on our main thoroughfare.

Clever Young Partners

Two clever young women are the owners of the shop, which they opened in December. Miss Ruth Bolinger has studied weaving for several years and before coming to Edmonton did weaving designing in California, where hand woven goods are very much in demand. Miss Bolinger is in charge of the weaving part of the establishment and designs the patterns which later appear in the materials. Her partner, Mrs. Iona M. Dennis, was, until coming to the city a few months ago, a leading designer and tailor in Los Angeles. Mrs. Dennis and Miss Bolinger became interested in a warp and woof shop they saw in Miami, Florida and, deciding to start one of their own, they chose Edmonton.

Individual Weaves

Individual weaves and exclusive styles are the two aims of the shop. The customer choses her own weave, the various standard designs, such as basket weave, Danish weave, French weave, being suited for certain weights of wool. The design at the edge of the cloth, which is often in a different color and becomes the trimming of the garment, is always of an exclusive pattern. Miss Bolinger designs each border to suit the individuality of the customer, and no two are alike.

Imported From England

Different weights of yarn take different weaves and the shop produces all weights of material from those used in heavy winter coats to those for light tennis frocks. Hand woven material is not like knitted goods, and does not stretch or become shapeless. Woollen yarns are imported from England for the weaving, and fine yarns with a silk finish are being used for the tennis frocks which are in demand at the moment. The yarns come in all the newest shades.

Not only is the material of the "Warp and Woof" garments specially made for the customer but each garment is an exclusive model. Even sport suits of the conventional tailored type have individual touches which give them that "different" appearance. Like all designers, Mrs. Dennis studies her customers and evolves lines specially suited to their figure. The variety of the garments is unlimited and at present there are many calls for travelling suits and "going away" outfits for spring brides.

Tells Dyspeptics What to Eat

Strict Diets Often Unnecessary

It is a well known fact that some foods have a strong tendency to produce excessive stomach acidity and consequent indigestion. By omitting from daily meals those foods that experience proves do not agree and limiting the diet to certain tasteless unappetizing foods, stomach troubles may in many instances, be slowly overcome. Nine times in ten, however, indigestion, gas, etc., are due to excessive acidity and the premature souring of food in the stomach. Keep the stomach clean and sweet by freeing it of this extra acid and then sufferers can eat the foods they like best and as much as they want in reason and have no stomach trouble at all. Thousands of people do this daily by merely taking after every meal a little Bisurated Magnesia, which can be had at any good drug store in either powder or tablet form. Bisurated Magnesia instantly neutralizes stomach acids, stops food fermenation and meals digest as naturally and painlessly as in the stomach of a healthy child. Stomach comfort means a lot and most folks like good things to eat. Enjoy them both by making Bisurated Magnesia your daily after-eating protection.

Plans for New Immigration Hall and Post Office Addition Under Way

Plans for Edmonton's new Immigration hall, provision for which has been made in the dominion estimates, are well under way, according to advices reaching Edmonton today.

The site of the new hall has not yet been determined. At one time it was thought that property on 103 street and 103 avenue, purchased by the government for a new customs house, might be used, but this scheme is now abandoned, as the site was considered too valuable, and a government agent will be in the city shortly to look over available land and make a purchase.

Chief Architect Fuller, of the public worksk kdepartment, also states that plans for the post office additions are nearing completion, and that actual construction should be commenced by July 1.

Dominion Likely to Erect Plant in Edmonton for Tar Sand Extraction

Construction of a $30,000 plant in this city or its environs for the extraction of bitumen from tar sands will be carried out this year by the Dominion government, according to information received late Tuesday afternoon from Ottawa.

With a view to getting down to work at the earliest possible moment, it is expected that Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior; Dr. H. Marshall Tory, former president of the University of Alberta, and now chairman of the Dominion Research Council; Dr. C. W. Camsell, deputy minister of mines; S. C. Ells, world-famous authority on tar sands, and Messrs. McLeish and Wilson, of the Mines branch, will leave Ottawa on Thursday to hold a conference with Dr. H. C. Wallace, president of the U. of A., and members of his faculty in connection with the plant.

With the erection of this plant, the success of Alberta tar sands seems assured.

Experiments conducted by both Dominion and Provincial governments have proved that the tar sands are not only commercially valuable but are durable under stress and have stood up under the most severe tests.

With the work to be carried out by the Dominion, added to an extended program on the part of the provincial government, there should be a great development in this vast potential natural resource this year.

The bad stretch between Athabaska and McLellan had been put into passable condition while the remainder of the road to Peace River and Grande Prairie is reported as good. The ferries at Smith and Dunvegan are both in operation now.

Hill, librarian. Other employees who have been getting the usual two weeks will be given three weeks' vacation, the resolution stated.

McCallum, city license inspector. WORK STARTED ON HIGHLANDS GOLF COURSE

Mayor Bury Turns First Sod—Play Will Commence in 1930

With Mayor A. U. G. Bury turning the first sod, construction was commenced on the new Highlands golf course, south of Ada Boulevard. According to George H. Van Allen, one of the directors of the club, the first nine holes will be completed by fall but play will not commence until the spring of 1930.

A large club house fitted with every convenience and fully licensed is planned and an expert golf course architect has laid out the plans, assuring one of the finest courses in the city.

Mayor A. U. G. Bury

Parlee Is President

The officers of the club are: President H. H. Parlee, K.C.; vice-president, Dr. Atkinson; secretary-treasurer, W. Brown; directors, George H. Van Allen, R. C. Marshall and H. L. Humphreys

In turning the first sod, Mayor Bury declared: "It is very pleasant to take this the first step in the actual work of realizing what to many of us in this part of the city has long been a dream. In that view of this afternoon's function I think there may be a certain fitness in my performing this little ceremony; for one perhaps all too frequently associates mayors with dreams even though they be often only night—and not day and night—mayors.

Wholesome Scheme

"The significance of the movement of which this function is only a formal part is much greater than people may be inclined to think. For the movement is part of a very wholesome and very necessary change which is gradually passing over the face of our life, civic and national, a change in our view of the relative importance of work and money-making on the one hand and recreation and physical, mental and social enjoyment on the other. Gradually we are coming to the saner view that a man's life consists not in the abundance of the things which he has, but in health, happiness, friendship, sympathy, helpfulness, a wider outlook and a sense of proportion And these things come to us more in the open air, under God's heaven than in the stuffy contractions of the office. And we are gradually realizing also that this change in view and practice is not to be confined to the very rich or moderately rich, but should reach with its benefits and blessings those who have little more than enough to meet the bare requirements of life. We are working, we must work, towards the day when every man, woman and child will have his adequate share of proper leisure and recreation, and cease to be a mere cog in a ruthless industrial machine grinding out product and profits.

"Towards this view those who are the active originators and organizers of this club hope to be able to establish and operate it at an annual fee which will be within the resources of the man or the family of moderate means

"We are extremely fortunate in Edmonton in having either in existence or in contemplation and approximate realization four splendid links all within the city of Edmonton. In this and in the quality of our links I think we probably are unique in the north American continent. And this is one of the few good things which have been made possible by the evil of the slump which we suffered in the years just ended, and which threw into the possession of the city the lands without which such developments would have been possible only at a prohibitive cost

NEW BUILDING PLANNED FOR FAIR GROUNDS

Special Section for Old Timers in Opening Day Parade

With every inch of available space in the Manufacturers Building booked up already for the summer fair, and with 27 additional applicants requesting that space be allotted to them the Directors of the Edmonton Exhibition association at a meeting on Monday evening decided to erect a building costing $2,000 to give the necessary accommodation to exhibitors this year. It was pointed out by Manager P. W. Abbott that the revenue from this building would be between $700 and $800 a year, and that the building would reimburse the outlay in three years. The structure will be erected just north of the entrance to the grandstand and will be one of the best buildings in the show for exhibit purposes.

The directors decided to increase the salary of the secretary from $2,000 per annum to $2,600 and to make an allowance of $50 for the use of her car during the spring show. An allowance of $100 was made to the manager for the use of his car during the same period.

Advertising Report

A detailed report from the publicity committee on advertising for the summer show was presented and adopted.

In connection with the first day attendance committee it was decided to hold a parade, and a report submitted to the directors indicated that at least 50 floats would be featured in the parade. It was also decided that a prize for the best decorated private car would be given by the Association, and an appropriation of $1,000 was passed to organize the parade.

It was also decided that the admission to the grounds and the grand stand would be reduced to twenty-five cents for the opening day, and that a small portion of the grandstand would be set aside for specially reserved seats at a cost of fifty cents

In connection with the parade it was intimated by the manager that

Calgary Firm To Open Office Here

S. W. Gilfoy & Company of Calgary are to open an office in Edmonton, according to an announcement made here today by W. S. Swaggert, representative of the organization who will be in charge in Edmonton.

The Calgary company is well known in stock market circles and at present is handling a pre-listing issue of Shellett Lake Mines, Ltd., a company whose claims adjoin those of the famous Sherritt-Gordon in northern Manitoba. Mayor Arthur Ellis, Ottawa, is president of the company.

It is intended to proceed with diamond drilling on the property this summer, according to Mr. Swaggert. The ore body on Sherritt-Gordon runs to the boundary of the two properties Shellett Lake adjoining the former on the east, and it is the intention of Shellett Lake officials to map out the ore body and then proceed to intensive development.

Plan Summer Rates For Garden Water

Summer rates for water will be granted householders who wish to water their lawns and gardens this year, according to Commissioner David Mitchell. Those who wish to receive these reduced rates must apply at the waterworks office to sign an application form.

Consumers who wish to take advantage of the reduced rates will pay their water bills regularly between May 1 and August 31. On August 31 an adjustment will be made on the basis of the excess during those four months over the average monthly consumption for the six months previous to May 1, and the city will pay 50 per cent of this excess.

This special rate will not apply to any accounts in arrears, the commissioner stated.

Canny Scot Wanted To Go Home. He'll Go Soon

Stole Quantity of Tools, Walked to Police Station and Confessed to Theft—Is Deported

William Scott, out-of-work Scotch immigrant, chose a novel way of getting a little attention and arranging things so that he would be deported back to his native land

Scott systematically searched a number of cars in front of the Memorial hall over the week-end and walked into the city police station with his arms loaded with tools and tire repair material.

Letting the lot clatter onto the counter, Scott announced that he was a criminal and a thief, and since he was such a bad person the only thing to do was to send him back from where he came

"Sure, I stole them," Scott told Magistrate Primrose in court Tuesday morning. "I want to go back home."

"All right," His Worship agreed "You'll have three months in jail pending deportation"

The boys will be in camp in England for two weeks after which they will be given a week for sightseeing, leaving Glasgow for home on August 23 aboard the Letitia.

Altogether 64 boys from Canada will attend the huge gathering in the heart of the Empire. The trip was made possible through the kindness of the Goernor General who created a fund for that purpose.

The boys chosen have all been recommended by their respective scoutmasters and other officials connected with the troops, as well as being the selection of their comrades in their troops.

Further announcements concerning the plans for the Alberta boys will be made before long.

NEED PERMITS FOR TEN TONS HIGHWAY LOAD

More Regulations for Vehicles Issued by Government

No vehicle having a flange, rib clamp or other device attached to its wheels which will injure the road; no vehicle imposing a load of a total weight in excess of 10 tons, or of 7,200 pounds on any one wheel, nor any other object or contrivance for moving loads which will injure the road shall be operated or moved upon, or over, any highway or road without the owner having first obtained a permit in accordance with specified provisions, according to rules governing traffic on highways issued on Tuesday by the provincial government

The municipal corporation or other authority having jurisdiction over the highway or road may upon application in writing, grant a permit for moving vehicles mentioned in the above paragraph. This permit may contain special conditions as may be deemed necessary for the protection of the highway from injury and the municipal corporation or other authority may require a bond sufficient to cover cost of repairing possible injury to the highway.

In the case of a vehicle for which a permit is required in order to pass over highways under the jurisdiction of two or more municipalities, the permit so to do may be issued by the department of public works, which permit shall be in lieu of the several permits to be otherwise obtained from the municipal corporation. This permit may limit the time and particular highway which may be used and may contain protective measures against injury to the highway.

The owner, driver, operator or mover of such vehicles shall be responsible for all damages occasioned to the road by his vehicle.

Contractor and Two Farmers go to Court Sum Involved $4950

Action for the recovery of $4950 was commenced in the supreme court on Tuesday before Chief Justice W. C Simmons and civil jury by Alexander McLeod against John D. Hughes and Charles E. Wilson

After brief preliminaries, the following were sworn in as talismen: J. Price, John Roste, D. A. Thomas, J T. Brongeest, E. D. C. Thomson and James Taylor

The action is the result of a transaction involving a quarter section of land.

Plaintiff is a farmer, while defendant Hughes also is a farmer and defendant Wilson is a contractor

Plaintiff purchased a quarter section of land from defendants for $8950 and paid $5700 in cash and to cover the balance executed a mortgage for $3250

It was alleged by plaintiff that defendants said the land was free from weeds and actively concealed the fact that there were weeds known as "corn spurry" on the land and that as a result of the said weeds being on the land, the growing of grain was seriously interfered with

The case is continuing.

H. Ray Milner, K.C., and D. W Cobbledick are appearing for plaintiff while Sidney B. Woods, K.C., is acting for defendants

Mr. Milner had just completed the outline of the case to the jury and some objections had been taken by Mr. Woods when adjournment time arrived.

Exhibition Likely To Pay Way In 1929

Despite an increase of over $1,500 in the amount paid out in prize money at the spring show, and also a considerable increase in the amount paid in wages during that week, it is possible that the show will just about pay its way, but if not the deficit will not be more than $100, declared P. W. Abbott, managing director of the Edmonton Exhibition association at a meeting of the directors on Monday evening.

Mr. Abbott also pointed out that the reduced admission prices were a factor in the financial result of the spring show, but that the interest stimulated in the citizens in the livestock exhibits was such that this reduction in prices more than paid the advertising which the association received.

MUCH MONEY FOR FARMERS SAYS BANKER

High Official of Canadian Bank of Commerce Visits Edmonton

There will be plenty of money to meet the legitimate requirements of the farmer this year, according to B. P. Alley, assistant general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce who is an Edmonton visitor today

Mr. Alley, who is accompanied by J. B. Corbett, H. F. Liggins and E. E. Henderson, superintendants at Calgary, Regina and Winnipeg, respectively, Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. Alley, is on his way back to Winnipeg from the Pacific coast and will leave Edmonton Wednesday morning

Speaking of conditions generally, Mr. Alley stated that they are good, and to some extent, better than expected in view of the two last crops which were not any too profitable to the farmer. Business is better than last year, every city visited showing signs of advancement and prosperity

Collections Slow

Collections are a trifle slower with a larger demand, but this could be expected. There will be no change in the policy of the bank towards making farm loans and no tightening of credit to the legitimate farmer. The demand for farm credit will be heavier this year, it is expected

Dealing with the development of the Peace River country, the visitor said that the Bank of Commerce had been one of the first into that area and that it now had a good representation Expansion and extensions would be made as conditions warranted

Mr. Alley did not care to express an opinion on the present craze for speculation, but mentioning the oil situation, said there was a great deal of interest being taken in it outside of Alberta

WHEAT NEARLY HALF SEEDED IN PROVINCE

No Labor Shortage is Report of C.P.R. Official From Statistics

Wheat seeding in Alberta is 48 per cent completed, according to statistics compiled by J. M. McKay, general agricultural agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway and released on Tuesday.

A quantity of oats, barley and rye has been seeded, but cannot be considered as general as yet

Mr. McKay has found much power equipment available and no labor shortage. Thus he expects every available acre will be seeded. He has found it a common practice to use two shifts of horses on one seed drill Stubble from combines has been burned in many cases and is making a good seed bed for wheat

Throughout the west seeding has been general in the last week, according to Mr. McKay. Excessive moisture somewhat retarded operations in southern Alberta, but scattered and snow in Calgary, Medicine Hat and Lethbridge districts were welcome for germination purposes.

Soil is generally in good condition and a large amount of new breakage and fall plowing done is expected to add much to the total acreage. Pastures are backward but livestock is in good condition

A brisk demand for cattle is reported, as there is for hogs and lambs Prices remain high and the market seems steady but deliveries continue below the average of other years

Want Permit For Big Auditorium

Application for permission to erect a $140,000 auditorium on Jasper avenue and 112 street will come before the city finance meeting Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. It is proposed to use this building for a dance hall, indoor sports, concerts and other amusement purposes

Other items on the agenda are the proposed reduction in domestic and commercial light and power rates, applications for watermain extensions in various parts of the city and the request of the Canadian National railway for the city to make plans for the construction of a subway under the C.N.R. tracks on 97 street in 1930

JOTS FROM LITERATURE

THOMAS DE QUINCEY, one of literature's strangest characters, was born in 1785. He was one of England's most learned men. He studied in profound seclusion for 20 years, then for 40 years more, during which time his brain was more or less beclouded with opium, he poured out a flood of magazine articles, which were collected later in 14 volumes. The range of his knowledge was astonishing. His style was beautiful and impassioned as if colored by his opium dreams, and his imagination held his readers enthralled. Two great works remain well-known to English speaking peoples, "De Profundis" and "Confessions of An Opium Eater." He lived to the age of 74.

Building Boom On In Entwistle Town

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

ENTWISTLE, May 7.—Mrs. John Lucker has returned to her home in Drayton Valley after spending some time in an Edmonton hospital. She is much improved in health and after a short period of convalescence expects to be able to resume her household duties.

There is a building boom on in Entwistle at present. E. Leduc has just completed a large public garage for Mr. Seedhouse which will be of great advantage to the travelling public, being situated on the Jasper highway. T. V. Reed has started the foundation of a large warehouse to display the International Harvester Co.'s machinery, of which he is agent for this district. This building also occupies a frontage on the Jasper highway.

Mr. C. Daniel has remodelled his hotel. The successful contractors being, carpentering work, E. Johnson, and the plastering work went to N. Balfour and W. DeLorie, who have excelled in their work, thereby making the Pembina hotel one of the finest in the west, both for comfort and accommodation.

Mrs. Read was made the recipient of a lovely present as a memento of the event as well as showing the high esteem in which she is held in the community. Cards were indulged in by all present, the sensation of the game being the pronounced ability of Miss Betty McPhee, the youngest member of the party in manipulating her cards to the extent of making her a tie for the first prize, which was a great honor, seeing she had old and most experienced players against her.

Hythe Business Men Grade Town's Streets

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

HYTHE, May 7.—In the keeping with the "Spirit of Hythe" the businessmen got together the other night and decided that they would grade the streets of the town, and today it is being done. Lee Borden's big Caterpillar tractor and a John Deere breaker did the plowing and the tractor and a Massey-Harris road grader is doing the grading. Thus all the implement dealers are getting a share of good advertising for their wares and nobody is being slighted. Second Avenue for two blocks north to Tenth and Tenth Street for two blocks from west to east will be put into [illegible] shape. The business men are paying for it out of their own pockets but it may be that they will be re-imbursed from the village when incorporation is completed which is now being done as quickly as the government machinery can be induced to operate. Cement side-walks are being put in on Second Avenue, and it is likely that Tenth Street will follow the [illegible]

Settlers still keep [illegible] in and Robert Allan, the land man, reports business as good. Many of the settlers favor Port St. John, Pouce Coupe and Brainard districts, while a large number are going into the Good Fate district. It is rumored that a colonization of French settlers returning from the Eastern States will locate there this summer.

Seeding of wheat is practically completed. Ernie Henderson has the distinction of being the first to complete seeding operations entirely. There will be many through this week and everybody will be finished next week if the weather holds good as at present. There is every indication that Hythe district will harvest its biggest crop in history this year. There is plenty of moisture and wheat has already sprouted. The frequent showers lately is an indication that there is going to be sufficient precipitation this season.

Prairie Fire Rages Hours At Coronation

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

CORONATION, May 7.—The usual weekly half-holidays will begin on Wednesday afternoon, May 8th and will continue until August 14th, except in the weeks in which a statutory holiday occurs.

R. J. McKeag, farmer, of Silver Heights, died at hospital Saturday April 27th in his 64th year, following a short illness of pneumonia. Mr. McKeag was a native of Oxenden, Ontario, and has resided in the Talbor and Silver Heights districts for about fifteen years. He is survived by Mrs. McKeag, seven daughters and two sons. Funeral services conducted by Rev. G. D. Armstrong took place at Trinity United Church and burial at Coronation cemetery.

A prairie fire which raged for forty hours, destroyed some buildings and hay in stacks and burned off several hundred acres of pasture started in the vicinity of Hiram twenty miles south of Coronation on Friday afternoon. Rakings from a field that had been hailed out last year were being burned when a sudden gust of wind lifted a small bundle of flaming straw and carried it over to the dry grass in another field. Two carloads of helpers from Youngstown assisted the volunteer fire fighters, answering a call for help from Reeve Baldwin of the Hiram municipality. This is the third prairie fire that has occurred in this district spring, the others being of small proportions.

The hospital board is having a building erected in the grounds north of the hospital to be used as sleeping quarters for the nursing staff. This will provide much needed accommodation by having the rooms now occupied by the nurses for the use of patients.

Mothers, Daughters Banquet, Westlock

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

WESTLOCK, May 7.—The C.G.I.T. groups held their annual mother-and-daughter banquet in the U.F.A. hall Friday evening. About sixty sat down to the tables, which were prettily decorated with the group colors, ferns and flowering plants. Mrs. D. K. Allen, acted as toast mistress. In the absence of Mrs. Ostreich, Mrs. A. M. Neilson led the group singing. The usual toasts were drunk. Mrs. Campbell of the girls' work board gave an able address. Fitting solos were given by Mrs. Ivan Garrison and Miss Henderson, each of which was encored. Mrs. D. Stanton and Mrs. Geo. Guest gave two very pleasing piano duets.

Mr. Frank Merriweather was unfortunate in having his fine barn destroyed by fire last Saturday.

A number of ladies met at the hospital on Tuesday afternoon and organized a hospital auxiliary. Sister Seton gave a draft of the proposed constitution. The officers elected were: president, Mrs. Dr. A. M. Crawford; vice-president, Mrs. Watt; secretary-treas., Mrs. G. Crane. Meetings will be held on the second Tuesday of each month.

The U.F.A. put on a very much enjoyed dance in their hall last Friday evening. It might easily be called an old time dance of the season, with Jack Taylor of Clyde violinist, and Art Edgan floor manager, and caller of the old-time square dances.

Many prairie and brush fires are seen in every direction. Old straw stacks are being burned so that the land will be clear for plowing.

Most of the people of the village do not wait for Arbor Day to get their yards cleaned up.

Born, on Tuesday, April 30, to Mr. and Mrs. Lame Campbell, a daughter, Lorna Jean.

Neighbors Sow Crop Of Sick Viking Man

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

VIKING, May 7.—The Young Peoples Society played before a packed house Friday evening when they presented the farce in three acts, entitled "What happened to Jones." Many of the actors displayed real talent, and each one was greeted with storms of applause as they proceeded with the various situations that required some real acting. The cast included Val Marker, W. P. Wagner, Wesley Bainbridge, Kenneth Hilliker, J. W. Bainbridge, George Campbell, Mrs. H. B. Collier, Miss Marguerite Gimby, Miss Gladys Harris, Miss Irene Grant, Miss Anna Doran, and Miss Agnes Wick. Some very good selections by the orchestra relieved the time spent waiting for the curtain to rise.

Neighbors of Andrew Holand, residing southwest of town, gathered at his farm on Friday and put in his crop as he lay ill in the hospital. During the day 23 men and 102 horses were on the job plowing, harrowing, discing and seeding 65 acres of field. Before nightfall the job was completed. Each one brought food which was served by the women folks who came to help in the proceedings. The farmer who was thus assisted was not aware of the good turn his neighbors had done, in leaving their own work and doing a neighborly act.

RICH GIRL— POOR GIRL

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MILDRED LAWRENCE meets and falls in love with STEPHEN ARMITAGE. He is lured away from her by PAMELA JUDSON, who tells him that Mildred is trying to marry her brother HAROLD for his money. Harold loves Mildred but he is in deadly fear of a gambler, HUCK CONNOR, who has a check which he forged. Huck is infatuated with Pamela, who plays with him to make Stephen jealous.

Believing that Mildred is a cheap little fortune seeker, Stephen permits Pamela to announce their engagement when she tells him that is the only way she can break with Huck. Infuriated, Huck frames Stephen for the theft of an auto and plants evidence in his room which causes his arrest. Pamela breaks the engagement, but Mildred goes to see him in jail and promises help.

Mildred had got a confession from Harold once that Huck was the cause of his fear and that he was going to "get Armitage" to keep him from marrying Pamela. With this as a clue after Stephen's arrest, Mildred determines to force Harold to reveal what he knows about Huck.

Meanwhile Huck calls on Harold and makes new demands. Harold defies him and tries to fight. Huck knocks the boy unconscious and hurls the body through the window to death below. He makes a get away and the death is called accidental, but the police find a fingerprint on the boy's belt buckle which makes them suspicious.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIII

Duke Broggan told Huck that the police did not regard Harold Judson's death as either an accident or suicide.

Huck sat before him in his office and looked at him without so much as a flicker of his eyelids as he asked Duke what he thought that had to do with him.

Duke twisted his lips into a sardonic grin. "Just thought you'd like to know," he answered easily. "They might try to pin it on you."

"Why?"

"Why?" Duke stared at Huck in admiration. "Well, a lot of people know that your racket with young Judson wasn't on the up-and-up."

Huck did not answer directly.

"Who passed you the information from headquarters?" he asked.

Duke shook his head. "It's straight," he said, "and it'll cost you a century note."

Huck reached for his billfold.

A little later, having learned all that Duke could tell him, he left. He did not consider the situation very serious. Unfortunately for him, Duke's informant had not been in full possession of the facts in the case.

Huck still was unaware of the discovery of his thumbprint on the belt buckle. However, he decided not to ignore the warning Duke had given him.

And while he acted on it by giving up his suite at the Judson and going into semi-retirement, Mildred was doing her bit to tighten the chain of evidence about him.

For in spite of what the newspapers said—some leaned on the suicide theory while others suspected it to be an accident—she did not believe that Harold's death was either.

She had learned of it the night it happened. Driven nearly frantic by Harold's failure to come to her as he had promised, she telephoned after several hours of waiting and was told by the operator who recognized her voice, that he was dead.

Her mother came upon her a few minutes later sitting blank faced, with her hands gripped on the instrument as though frozen there. Mrs. Lawrence cried out in alarm.

Mildred's nerves seemed suddenly to melt as her mother rushed toward her. With a little, moaning cry, she slipped to the floor in a huddled heap.

The next day she was calm enough to go to Stephen and tell him all that had preyed on her mind so torturingly since his arrest.

He listened in silence.

"You must appeal to your family and get a lawyer now," Mildred said to him when she finished telling of Harold's subjugation to Huck.

Stephen looked at her a bit hopelessly, she thought. She had expected him to be excited, but her story had presented an idea to him that had escaped Mildred. Besides, he suspected that she had not told him everything.

They were facing each other on the hard bench in his cell. Stephen reached out to take her hands in his.

"You don't believe Harold met his death accidentally or by suicide, do you?" he asked as quietly as he could.

"Of course not," Mildred answered unguardedly. "I'm sure someone killed him!"

"Because he was ready to talk? You said that, didn't you?"

Mildred nodded. "I think he was. If he'd come to me that night and I'd told him about the way they threatened me. . . ." She stopped in sudden confusion, remembering she had not told Stephen of the attempt to silence her.

Stephen leaned forward and tugged at her hands. "There," he exclaimed, "I knew you were keeping something back. Don't you see? If they murdered that kid because they thought he was about to make a confession to you they must be afraid of you, Mildred."

"But Harold is dead," Mildred quavered. "What can they do now?"

"What can they do? If they find out what you've told me they —"

He paused, but Mildred read his unspoken thought.

"I'm not afraid," she said.

"I know you're not," Stephen declared warmly, "but with all we know, or believe, we haven't any proof."

"I can swear that Harold knew Huck was planning to do you some injury from which he might have saved you if he hadn't been a coward." She spoke the last word apologetically.

"But you can't swear that he was responsible for this car theft," Stephen pointed out.

"I know he was afraid of Huck; that Huck had something with which he blackmailed him!"

"But just knowing it doesn't do us any good. Your unsupported word isn't sufficient to incriminate him, Mildred."

Mildred leaned back and looked at him with a doubt growing in her mind that caused her to draw her hands away from him.

"Aren't you going to do anything about what I've told you?" she asked.

For a few seconds Stephen evaded her direct glance; then he looked up.

"What can I do?" he asked simply.

Mildred stood up. A lump in her throat choked her. Stephen stood, too, and struggled with a temptation to tell her why he couldn't act. He hated to have her think he didn't appreciate all she had done for him.

"I think I understand," Mildred said, striving to subdue the catch in her voice. "You don't want to drag Pamela's name into it."

Stephen started and opened his mouth to speak; then closed it to a firm, hard line. He could not tell her that it was her own safety he was thinking of. She was too fearless. Better to have her think he was protecting Pamela than let her risk her life.

"If there was any proof," he said doubtfully and stopped.

"A lawyer might find proof," Mildred retorted, "but if you want to stay here in jail just because . . ."

"If I promise to get a lawyer will you give me your word not to say anything to anybody about all this?" Stephen pleaded suddenly.

Mildred's unsteady chin went up several inches.

"If I can prove that Harold was murdered, I'll do it," she said fiercely.

Stephen grasped her by the shoulders. "Keep out of it, please," he begged. "I'll wire dad for some money and engage a lawyer. He'll put a detective to work and maybe we can turn up something on Connor, but I don't want you mixed up in it, Mildred." He paused and added, purposely to mislead her, "you might make a wrong move."

"Why shouldn't everyone know that Huck hated you because he was jealous of Pamela?" she asked. "I'll do what I think I ought to, regardless of her."

Stephen groaned, but Mildred was adamant. She left him without giving the promise he had tried to exact.

She'd have gone straight to the police, but she knew that her word alone would not free Stephen.

"But I'll see Mr. Judson," she declared to herself emphatically. "Surely he won't let Pamela stand in the way of bringing Huck to justice."

Thereafter she telephoned the hotel twice daily until she learned when Mr. Judson was expected to land in New York.

She could not leave her work to be at the pier when his boat docked but she went without her lunch that noon to go to the hotel and ask to see him. Hers was a long wait before she was told that he was not seeing anyone.

Mildred appreciated the fact that it was an inopportune time to seek him and departed without pressing her request.

She waited until the day after Harold was buried before trying again to reach his father. She was refused admittance to his presence a second time. And when, on her third visit, he declined to see her she lost her patience and sent up a plea that was almost a demand.

"She insists she's got to see you, sir," the page who carried her message said to the worn-looking man who had hurried across the ocean to bury his only son.

Mr. Judson's eyebrows drew together in a forbidding scowl. He considered Mildred's request to see him the height of brazenness. His mind was filled with the picture of all that had remained of his boy when they had opened the coffin and allowed him to view the poor broken body. What could this girl want but to promote some selfish scheme?

He sent word down to her that he would not see her now or ever.

A few questions put to Pamela had convinced him that Mildred was a heartless fortune hunter. He had no doubt she wanted to urge some money claim upon him. He knew what wealthy men had to deal with. Probably Harold had promised this girl to marry her.

Mildred was in despair. She could guess the truth. She knew that Pamela must have lied about her to bring about her discharge from the hotel in the first place. Very likely she had added to her story since her father's return.

Stephen noted her depression when she went to see him after staying away for several days.

"What's wrong?" he asked sharply, fearful that she had drawn the wrath of his enemies upon her head.

"Have you written to your father?" she countered.

Stephen said he had. "And I'm glad you came in," he added, "because I've taken a liberty with you by giving dad your address."

"Then you haven't told them?"

Stephen hung his head. "I couldn't" he confessed. "You've given me hope, Mildred," he went on, brightening. "I want to get out of this before I let them know."

"Oh, you will," Mildred cried fervently.

"You know, I think I will," Stephen exclaimed. "I've got a young lawyer who didn't demand a fee that would choke a horse —"

"Does he know anything?"

"He's having Huck Connor investigated," Stephen told her and there was a ring of satisfaction in his voice that lifted all but a faint shadow of Mildred's depression.

Stephen was on his feet, walking rapidly up and down. Now he stopped before her and Mildred sensed that he was about to say something important.

"Just out of a clear sky," he began indirectly; "just like that." He snapped his fingers. "I've got it."

"Got what?"

"The dope on Connor. I remembered where I'd seen him before."

Grimshaw To Hold Sports on June 12th

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

GRIMSHAW (In Peace River Country), May 7.—About 30 from Grimshaw attended the dance in Stongcreek on Friday, the roads now being in fine condition for car traffic.

The first week in May is clean up week and residents of Grimshaw are busy making the town look its best.

The Peace River country seems to have missed the rains and occasional snow storms that have been prevalent in other parts of Alberta and the soil is in right condition, the farmers having nothing to hinder them in getting on the land and everyone is taking advantage of it.

At a meeting held on Saturday evening with representatives from the U.F.A., Board of Trade and baseball club, it was decided to have June 12th as a permanent date for the Grimshaw sports. Owing to the very recent organization of a baseball club in Grimshaw it was impossible to set a date before. June 12th is the date for the U.F.A. picnic for the children and it was decided to hold the sports on that day as well.

German Canadian Association Asks City Council To Retire Civic M.H.O.

GIRL'S DEATH FROM POISON IS HEARD OF

Sentiment Growing at Failure of Authorities to Act, They Say

That the city council request the resignation of Dr. T. H. Whitelaw, medical health officer as a mark of disapproval of his conduct in the case of Frieda Schneider, German immigrant girl, who died recently following a week's incarceration in the city jail after she had taken rat poison is the substance of a resolution which has been forwarded by the German Canadian Association of Alberta to Mayor A. U. G. Bury.

The resolution reads: "Whereas the German immigrant girl, Frieda Schneider, died under circumstances which caused the coroner's jury to censor Dr. Whitelaw, the medical health officer, and whereas the German Canadian Association of Alberta has been patiently watching development without relinquishing the right of protest, and whereas the sentiment regarding the inactiveness of the authorities who should deal with the matter is continuously growing, and whereas Dr. Whitelaw's conduct of the case seems to enjoy the protection of certain medical circles, contrary to all expectations, and whereas the benevolent fairness of the administration of the city of Edmonton might be seriously questioned in other countries, and whereas protests irrespective of creed and nationality are coming in great numbers from all parts of the province

Be it resolved that the German Canadian Association of Alberta petitions the council of the city of Edmonton to request Dr. Whitelaw's resignation, thus showing their disapproval of his conduct both from a humane as well as medical point of view.

The resolution is signed by Dr. F. O. Rosh.

EXPERTS FEEL DEBT PROBLEM STILL IN AIR

Settlement Prospect Not Too Bright — Up to France and Belgium

Associated Press

PARIS, May 7.—The fate of the experts' conference on reparations rested today in the hands of the French and the Belgians, with the prospect for a settlement of the ponderous problem neither rosy nor hopeless

Both nations seemed bent on taking their time in studying the figures of the new proposals, and what may be more important, Germany's reservation to acceptance of those figures A British stipulation that there be no change in the percentages for distribution of reparations fixed at Spa, Belgium, just after the war, was considered also.

The Spa agreement assigned 52 per cent of the reparations to France; 22 per cent to Great Britain; 10 per cent to Italy; 8 per cent to Belgium and the remainder to the other creditors in small amounts

Everywhere it was felt that the reservations of Dr. Schacht, German spokesman, to acceptance of the American plan, constituted a greater hazard to its acceptance than the figures themselves

France and Belgium must be persuaded to accept the figures, it was intimated in some quarters, but it was believed the reservations when they became known would be of such a nature as to make acceptance impossible.

Private conversations between the delegates of the allied nations were planned today to permit discussion of the new status of the conference A plenary session will be called when a decision has been reached.

CHANGE RULES FOR WORK ON MINING LANDS

Development to be Measured by Efficiency Rather Than Days' Labor

Canadian Press

OTTAWA, May 7 Development work on mining claims in dominion lands will be measured in future by the amount of work actually done rather than the time spent in doing it or the money paid out. This was made clear in a statement issued by the department of the interior.

Under the old regulations governing quartz mining, one hundred dollars in development work had to be expended on a mineral claim each year and a total expenditure of $500 to entitle the recorder owner to a final lease. Last January an order-in-council was passed changing this requirement to not less than forty days work of eight hours each on the claim each year and 200 days' work in all to admit of a final lease being granted.

"As a licensee may stake out and acquire each year" says the statement "in any mining division three mineral claims for himself and three claims for each of two other licensees, and in the Northwest Territories double that number, complaint has been made that the prospector of limited means might be unable to do or cause to be done, the number of days' work each year on the number of claims which the regulations permit him to acquire particularly in the Northwest Territories."

Based on Efficiency

The statement adds:

"In order to compute with fair accuracy the results which might reasonably be accomplished during the prescribed number of days work each year, a schedule of representation has been prepared under the present regulations, indicating the kind and quality of development work which may be accepted as equivalent to forty days work of eight hours each, dependent in each case on the distance of the claim from transportation facilities by operating railway.

"This schedule is based upon the efficiency of the operator rather than upon the number of days actual work, and is dependent upon the results accomplished rather than upon the time consumed, and as nine adjoining claims may be grouped for operation, the prescribed development work, in the large majority of cases, may, by vigorous application, be performed in a much less period of time than that required by the regulations."

MONTREAL HAS MANY VESSELS IDLE AT DOCK

Crews Released Owing to Inability to Release Grain From Lake Boats

Canadian Press

MONTREAL, May 7.—Steamship companies which have ships tied up in Montreal with little chance in the near future of delivery of the grain in their holds, have released most of the crews, keeping but the minimum necessary to operate them. An arrangement has been made by a number of companies whereby the crew may live aboard and receive its meals at the expense of the owners. In this way is avoided the extreme hardship which would occur if so many seamen were laid off for an indefinite period. It also assures the companies having their men ready when the need for the ships comes

The number of lake vessels in port today was 76.

While the grain congestion here, due to world conditions of supply and demand, is great, it is said more grain has been received into the harbor elevators this season than during the same period last year.

There are now 12,993,253 bushels of grain in the four harbor elevators and 6,623,100 in the holds of the 76 vessels, making the total amount of grain in port, afloat and ashore, 19,616,353 bushels.

It is felt the second half of May may see some relief to the present situation, as some forty tramp steamers have been chartered to carry away grain. It is more than likely, however that some of the ships here now will remain until June. The ships will be unloaded in the order of their arrivals from the lakes.

WORD COWARD BRINGS BLOW TO MINISTER

Election Meeting in South Africa Develops Into Lively Free Fight

Associated Press

DURBAN, South Africa, May 7 — Hon. T. Boydell, minister of labor, was struck full in the face during a sensational incident at a crowded election meeting Monday. The minister of labor was addressing his constituents of Durban (Greyville). He referred to criticism levelled at the administration of a certain labor settlement scheme during the last session of parliament by some members of the assembly. He denounced these critics as "slanderers, liars, cowards," after having previously connected with the matter the name of J. S. Marwick, member of the assembly for the constituency of Illova, Natal. Marwick had been one of the chief critics of the scheme

Marwick, who was in the audience, immediately rose and walked to the platform, where he said to Boydell, "so you call me a coward, do you?"

Boydell replied in the affirmative, and Marwick struck him full in the face. Platform supporters of the minister of labor immediately seized Marwick, dragged him to the ground and handled him roughly. Within a few minutes, however, his friends rushed to the platform and rescued their sadly bruised and battered leader.

The fight was carried on for a short time, and when order was restored, Boydell continued with his speech, declaring he was quite prepared to settle the argument with Marwick by force if the latter preferred that method. He added that if Marwick would call at his address he would find him "fit and ready."

RUSH AID TO SNOW BLOCKED TRAIN IN MAN.

Warmer Weather Brings Relief in Manitoba's Worst Blizzard

Canadian Press

WINNIPEG, May 7.—Rising temperatures promised relief to Manitoba's far north today, after a 10-day blizzard ranking with the worst the bleak country has known. Aid is being hurried to two snowed-in work trains as the mercury, for a week hovering about 20 above, rose 10 degrees and ushered in milder weather.

Halted on the line of the Canadian National Railways, snowed under for 68 miles north of mile 442, the trains were carrying close to 200 men. One, with 160 passengers en route to Churchill for the department of railways and canals, was thought possibly to be in need of food.

Despatched by horses, then by dog train, then by tractor, supplies were being carried from a cache at mile 460 Plans to use an aeroplane available at mile 137 were believed to have been abandoned as warmer weather opened up the way for the supply men.

LABOR MUST NOT GOVERN SAYS SIMON

Liberal Party Will Not Assist in What He Calls Disaster

Canadian Press Cable

LONDON, May 7.—Sir John Simon, former Liberal cabinet minister, eminent jurist and chairman of the Indian statutory reform commission, in an address at Liverpool last night reiterated the absolute refusal of the Liberal party to repeat the experiment of 1924 of putting Labor in power, should no party gain a clear majority in the coming general elections.

"The Liberals will set themselves to serve the best interests of the country, not forgetting the King's government must be carried on, but they will at all costs preserve independence and freedom of action," he declared

Sir John, whose constituency of Spen Valley in Yorkshire and the attitude of his riding opponents is attracting great attention just now, visits the king at Craigwell House, Bognor, today. Tomorrow he will start a speaking tour in Wales.

Proposal Dropped

Apparently the proposal to run a Conservative candidate in Spen Valley has been dropped, in accordance with the opinion expressed by Premier Stanley Baldwin in a letter to the local Conservatives last year, when Sir John was appointed chairman of the Indian Commission. The prime minister has just made this letter public, rather dramatically intervening at a time when it was believed Conservative headquarters had prevailed on the constituency caucus to run a Conservative in opposition to Sir John, because they deemed he had not met them in the same conciliatory spirit. Immediately on his return from India a few days ago, Sir John began vigorously supporting Right Hon. David Lloyd George's unemployment program and criticizing the Conservatives.

The prime minister, however, it is officially announced, adheres to the opinion expressed in his letter—that party considerations should take second place and Sir John should be left free for the work of the commission.

Three Handed Fight

Sir John will still be opposed, it seems, by a Labor and a Communist candidate. H. H. Elwin is the Labor candidate and the Communist is S Asmani, president of the Indian Trades Union Congress, now awaiting trial in India on charges of sedition. The selection of the latter was made by Communists of the west riding, another indication of the resentment borne by Communists of the west riding against the royal commission which investigated in India to lay the foundation for political reform. A local Communist will act for Asmani throughout the campaign.

In 1924 Sir John was elected with a majority of 4,475 over a Labor opponent.

FISH PRESERVED

LONDON, May 7—This is some fish tale A. J. Lee, of Radlett, kept four gold fish in a garden pond where they could swim around freely. One night recently the pond froze solid, the fish freezing in the middle of a big block of ice. Lee, according to the tale, thawed out the ice and the fish began to swim again.

John C. Calhoun, vice-president under John Quincy Adams, was the only one ever to resign from that office.

the Northern Alberta Old Timers would have a complete section in the parade

An invitation has been extended to the Hon. Frank Oliver to open the Exhibition this year, and it is understood that, if possible to make the function fit in with his present arrangements that Mr. Oliver will perform the opening ceremony

The directors passed the sum of $200 for publicity in connection with the two day meet to be held here on May 24 and 25.

Band Contest

A report on the band contest was presented to the directors and a recommendation of the committee in charge of this section that all towns of less than 7,500 population be eligible for entry was passed. In connection with this contest the Musicians' Protective association of Edmonton have presented a challenge shield, while John Michaels has promised to donate medals to the members of the winning band.

The directors endorsed the inclusion of a horseshoe pitching contest again this year.

It was decided that an incinerator be built in the grounds to take care of all refuse, which is at present being dumped on the vacant land between the arena and the race track, and also that a considerable amount of levelling be done to the space allotted to the midway, the material for which is available on the ground at present.

A request from the University that a broadcasting booth be erected in the Agricultural building was concurred in, the cost of which building will be approximately $300. The erection of a drinking fountain opposite the women's building, and of several comfort stations was also passed, while the management was empowered to arrange for the placing of chairs at different points in the grounds for the convenience of visitors during the summer fair.

Extend Space

It was decided subject to the sanction of the city council, to extend the space allotted to machinery exhibits, and it is the intention of the directors to move back the fence from level with the women's building to a depth of 450 feet which will give additional exhibit space of 130 feet by 450 feet.

The directors also endorsed the recommendation of the executive committee that the plans for improvements to the grounds be carried through to the extent of $15,000, and that the suggestion from the City Commissioners that the $5,000 over the appropriation for these improvements passed by the city council be paid from the surplus from the fair when available, the city in the meantime to finance the work

In connection with the spring show next year the directors decided that consolation prizes be given to every exhibitor in all children's classes where the exhibit merited such consideration.

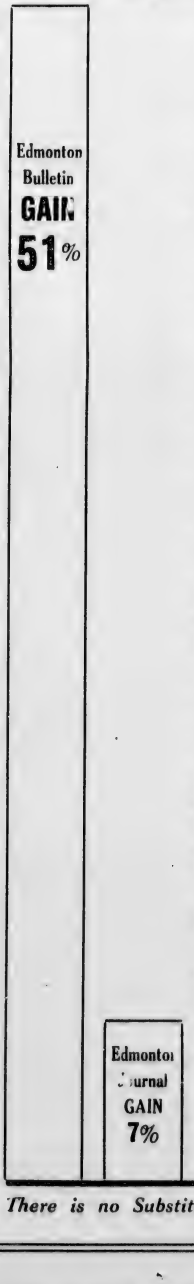
Do the People of Edmonton Want a Fair, Independent Newspaper?



Yes, and HOW!

It does not take a magician to show how the Edmonton Bulletin, improved and strengthened under its present ownership and management, has not only recorded the greatest circulation growth of any Alberta daily newspaper, but has recorded an achievement that is outstanding in Canadian newspaperdom — a gain of 51 percent in average daily net paid circulation over a period of three years.

In thirty-six months the Edmonton Bulletin has shown an average daily gain of 5901 subscribers, or 23,604 additional readers, representing in itself a big city of alert people with responsive Buying Power.

Yet this great addition to the reader family of the Edmonton Bulletin is but a part of the 72,608 readers who regularly read the Edmonton Bulletin for their city, national and world news and for important announcements of Edmonton merchants and national manufacturers.

In the fact that the percentage circulation growth of the Edmonton Bulletin during the last three years has been many times that of any other Alberta daily newspaper, there is reflected substantial, sustained and uniform increase in distribution, reader acceptance and greater influence in the upbuilding of business and the community.

More people, by the thousands, have subscribed to the Edmonton Bulletin during the last three years than any other Alberta daily newspaper, because they recognize in the Edmonton Bulletin a newspaper of Character, a newspaper that prints all the news and prints it first, a newspaper that is welcomed into the homes because it is fair and complete, a newspaper that has its only interests in the further development of Edmonton and Alberta, a newspaper that is forceful and fearless in fighting for "If It Will Help Alberta the Bulletin Is For It", and because the Edmonton Bulletin is a Better Newspaper.

Ninety-five out of every 100 copies of the Edmonton Bulletin produced every day are Delivered to the Homes. No stronger evidence of the strength of a newspaper could be offered than such pronounced acceptance in the homes.

The accompanying chart shows the percentage of increase in circulation of the Edmonton daily newspapers during the last three years, based on the publishers' sworn statements of circulation as of February 1, 1926, and February 1, 1929.

Senior Amateur Baseball League Officially Opens On Monday, May 20

SOUTH SIDE NINE TO MEET CHEVROLET CUBS IN OPENER

Stony Plain and Fort Saskatchewan Withdraw From League—Forty-two Games on Schedule and All Will Be Played at Boyle Street

BASEBALL fans will get their first glimpse of local clubs in action this spring on Monday, May 20, according to the official schedule for the 1929 season which was released by officers of the Senior Amateur League last night.

Last year's champions, the Chevrolet Cubs, will clash with the South Side Athletic Association in the opener. The South Side club secured control of the franchise of the Native Sons and will be piloted by the veteran "Cap" Spiessman.

DIAMOND WILL BE IMPROVED

The schedule calls for 42 games, all to be played at the Boyle Street park which means that each of the four clubs will play 21 games.

Work was started on the grounds last fall, the outfield being ploughed and grass planted, and officials of the league hope to have a greatly improved park this summer. The grass sown in the outfield is beginning to show and when certain other improvements are carried out, the field will have a vastly better appearance. It is expected that more bleachers will be built before long to take care of considerably larger crowds.

The absence of Fort Saskatchewan and Stony Plain in the schedule will no doubt cause quite a surprise after it had been announced that these two towns would be represented in the loop, but parties behind these clubs experienced some difficulty in organizing and financing their teams and were forced to withdraw their applications for franchises.

FOUR GAMES EACH WEEK

Following the same plan as carried out last year, games will be played on Sunday, Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week, thus giving fans four a week beginning May 20 and finishing July 31.

The schedule is as follows:

May 20—Cubs at South Side.
May 22—Bulls at Liberals.
May 24—South Side at Bulls.
May 26—Liberals at South Side.

YANKEE OWNER IS BLAMED FOR HIGH SALARIES

Col. Jake Ruppert Held Responsible for Big Demands

NEW YORK, May 7.—Because he signed Babe Ruth to a $70,000 contract three years ago next fall, Colonel Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, has been blamed for the increasing demands for high salaries in the major leagues.

It turns out, however, that the Colonel did not agree to pay Ruth's record-breaking salary until after he had consulted with the other American League club owners. Without exception they endorsed Colonel Ruppert's valuation of Babe Ruth's services, realizing that the home run king would increase the gate receipts whenever he appeared in their ball park.

When the colonel and Ruth get together to talk over a new contract the American League clubs again will be consulted. Ruth wants $100,000 a year and threatens to retire in the fall of 1932. But whether Colonel Ruppert's colleagues will consent to an increase of $30,000 a year is a question which they alone can answer.

MONTREAL, May 7.—H.R.H., the Prince of Wales, has extended his patronage to the third annual Highland gathering at Banff, which this year will be of exceptional interest to athletes, as the program will include the Dominion amateur track and field championships.

The date for the championships has been fixed for Labor Day, so as to enable as large an attendance of competitors as possible.

Experience of runners in the provincial championships which were held last year at Banff is that the track is very fast so that there is prospect that some world records will be challenged by the Dominion champions on September second. In order to still further encourage the purely Highland athletic events at this gathering, Lieutenant-Governor Randolph Bruce has offered a handsome trophy for the best all-round Highland athlete.

WELSH RUGBY CLUB HANDED BAD BEATING

Edmonton Squad Turned In 21-6 Triumph Last Night

Allen Sachse's Edmonton fifteen romped through to an easy 21-6 triumph over the Welsh in an Alberta British Rugby Union contest played at Renfrew Park last night.

The winners were in front all the way and, although pressed hard by the Welshmen in the early minutes of the second half when they pulled up to within two points of the leaders, chalked up a fairly easy victory.

Without detracting in any way from the win of the white-sweatered brigade, the game, from a spectator's viewpoint, was far from being the best played here this spring. Edmonton executed any number of sparkling passing bouts and had things pretty well their own way for the biggest part of the contest, but the losers fell away short of putting up the game that was expected of them.

Welsh Shorthanded

Starting the game without a full team, the Welsh felt badly the absence of their star backfield general, Tellum, who was on the injured list and did not enter the contest until after the breather. Without Tellum's services in the opening session, the losers' backfield looked woefully weak and played a ragged brand of rugby. They improved after the start of the second half but were weakened again towards the close when a couple of their players were penalized.

Sachse, leader of the winning squad, turned in a great performance and accounted for a good share of his team's total. He started the ball rolling in the first half by going over for a try and counting on the convert to put Edmonton ahead 5 to 0. Jim Meakin, big wing three-quarter, spoiled a great effort when he crossed the deadline before touching the ball down after a long dash. Shortly after this, he engineered another attack that brought results, Sachse getting the try on a pass. The Edmonton team were in front 8-0 at the half-time whistle.

Right after the interval, Lloyd, Welsh forward, fell on a loose ball across the Edmonton goal line to give his team their first points. Their total mounted to six shortly after this when they counted three points on a penalty goal. Taylor relieved the strain for Edmonton when he went over for an unconverted try. Ian Macdonald, husky wing forward of the winners, added another try which Sachse converted to make the score read 16 to 6 for Edmonton. Just before the end of the contest, Meakin crossed the Welsh line for a try and Macdonald made sure of the kick to bring the final score up to 21-6.

Line-ups

Edmonton: Prior, Les Smith, Sachse, Robinson, Meakin, McKinnon, Shirley, Bendle, Macdonald, Innes, Karpluk, Jack Smith, Polley, Taylor, Killick.

Welsh: Parsons, Tellum, Edwards, Evans, Jenkins, Jennings, David, Lloyd, Cibbler, Adby, Saunders, Davies, Evans, Jones, James.

BRITISH RUGBY PRACTICE

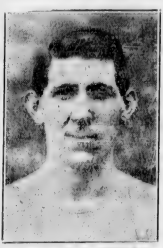
Comes to Canada With Welsh Football Team



FREDRICK C. KEENOR
(CARDIFF CITY)

Keenor is one of the most whole-hearted players ever seen on the football field. What he has done for Cardiff City and Wales would fill a considerable book. Again and again he has inspired the side and led the team of which he is a member to victory. His capacity for work is only equalled by his stamina which never seems to ebb, no matter what the conditions are and no matter who his opponents may be. He reminds one of the Scot who said that he would play till he "drappit doon" with exhaustion and with it all, he is a quiet self respecting fellow, unassuming forms his own opinions and has the courage to act upon them. He is the greatest individual production of Cardiff since that city became a soccer centre.

Born and bred in Cardiff, he was the first local schoolboy to play for Wales when he reached manhood. First joined Cardiff in 1913 and returned to his club after the war period, and none, no matter who he is among players, accomplished more to lift that club to one of the foremost in all Britain. The league championship being lost on goal average in 1923-24; the English Cup lost in the final tie by a bare goal in 1924-25 and in 1926-27 the coveted trophy was won and taken out of England for the first time, the cup being presented to Captain Keenor by his Majesty, the King and everyone agreed that the precious prize could not have been given to a more worthy man whose heart and soul were in the fortunes of Cardiff.

Versatile Player

He has played in every position on the field, excepting goal and outside forward—there is the complete footballer—not a whining grumbler who says "I can't play there" when asked to do a job. Keenor has been and is a hero to his club and country. He played in all last season's Internationals and since 1920 has been awarded 25 caps. No man can know or assess what he has done for Wales. His spade work and spirit are beyond human assessment. What his comrades think of him is reflected in the fact that Russell was appointed captain against England in the spring of 1923; but the players held a meeting and Russell not only proposed that Keenor should be captain, but he went to the Welsh selectors and obtained their consent.

Then this electrical personality went on the field and scored a goal from the half-back line that will never be forgotten. One of the most powerful centre half-backs on the defensive, he seldom neglects a chance to assume the offensive, he plays the practical and the effective above every other phase of the game. He is jealous of his reputation; once a disappointed spectator said to him when Wales had been beaten. "'A nice mess you've made of it. I've lost a shilling.'" "'What of it,'" responded Keenor; "'I've lost my reputation, so have we all'". That is the spirit that converts little Wales into mighty champions.

GREAT SOCCER TILT EXPECTED ON WEDNESDAY

Canadian Legion Eleven Hopes to Setback Nationals

A real soccer treat is billed for tomorrow night at Diamond Park when the Canadian Nationals lock horns with the Canadian Legion in a Vets-Martin trophy game. The kick-off is times for 6:45 o'clock sharp.

This contest, judging from present indications, should produce some of the best football of the season in addition to being one of the schedule to date.

The Nationals, leading the race in this competition, have shown exceptionally fine form and give promise of copping the trophy as they are as yet undefeated. Whether they will be able to turn back the fast-stepping Soldiers is another thing altogether but, according to the dope, there should be ninety minutes of the fastest action that has been seen below the hill for some time when they clash with the red shirts.

Although not boasting as many points as the railroaders in this competition, the Legion eleven have improved wonderfully in their last few appearances and seem to be the one team capable of handing the C.N.R. representatives a setback if any club is.

Billy Thompson will have charge of the fixture and the teams will line up as follows:

Nationals: Robson; Geldart, and Nisbet; Winter, McKay and Chrimes; Patterson, Henderson, Graham, Hall and Minchin. Reserves: McMillan and Pattison.

Legion: Parker; Young and Hoyle; McPherson, Thompson and Hancock; Allen, Turner, Findler, Pratt and Cavanagh. Reserves: Dingley, Ledgett and Pugh.

American League to Discontinue Naming Most Valuable Player

The league president E. S. Barnard presided at the session and heard the magnates decide that attempting to choose a most valuable player was demoralizing some time, and apt to be unfair.

BAD WEATHER FOR START OF BRITISH OPEN

Golfers Battled Against Rain, Wind, Cold Yesterday

MUIRFIELD, Scotland, May 7.—Great Britain's greatest golf classic opened here yesterday in weather of almost unprecedented violence. A half gale accompanied by rain swept the course all day. It was British weather at its worst and it combined with the leading British exponents of the game in helping to stall off the strongest American challenge in history and to restore British golf to its former strong position. From being a lame shadow of its former self, the British game has already planted one foot on the body of "Uncle Sam," and a victory in the British open would enable the often declared decadent island to stand astride an American corpse.

Play in the British open is being divided between two courses, Muirfield and the Municipal course at Gullane, one half of the field completed the qualifying round yesterday and the other half will play today.

The golfers' battle yesterday was with the elements, rather than with their opponents. The elements won through to the extent of making all the cards look uninteresting. Perhaps the most interesting card of the day was that of F. W. Stites, one of the United States contenders, who had the temerity to hand in a total of 101 containing strings of fives, sixes and sevens, with one eleven.

Courageous Struggles

Otherwise, the cards had the complexion of a second rate club competition but in actual fact they represented some really courageous struggles against rain, wind and cold. Illustrative of the latter condition Gordon Lockhart, well known Glen Eagles professional, missed his ball completely twice in succession, which is an almost unheard of indignity. One American said his club left his hands once because they were so cold.

Many devices were resorted to to defy the rain but the outstanding exception was the towering British favorite, Archie Compston, who, protected only by a leather jacket, shook off cascades of rain as he fought hole after hole.

Among those to be commisserated with most was a small army of Red Cross nurses who tried bravely to sell programs on behalf of the charity to the bedraggled handful of spectators.

Great Britain had the consolation of leading on both courses. Fred Jewel, a young professional from Long Ashton, who barely missed a place on the British Ryder cup team, led the field at Gullane and turned in the best score of the day, 72. Jack Whiting, of St. George's, Sandwich, topped the list at Muirfield. He is assistant to his father at the Sandwich club and the merit of his performance is enhanced by the fact that the Muirfield course is a good four strokes more difficult than Gullane. Whiting's score was 74.

Players in Jeopardy

Among the British players who are in jeopardy are Charles Whitcombe, whose card was 80; A. G. Havers, 1923 champion, with a score of 81; Gadd, 82; Ernest Whitcombe 84; Percy Allis of the Ryder cup team and Fred Leach, who coaches the Prince of Wales, 85; Ray Robson, 80, and James Braid, 82.

British amateurs down in the list included Oppenheimer, 83; Storey, 84, and W. Hope, 86. Numerous French challengers were completely subdued.

Right up at the heels of Jewel, with cards of 73, were George Von Elm, United States amateur, and Bobby Cruickshank, Scottish-American professional. Three British stars were grouped at 75, Abe Mitchell, Archie Compston and Aubrey Boomer. Leo Diegel, 74, and Walter Hagen 75, were among the leading Americans.

Used To Winning

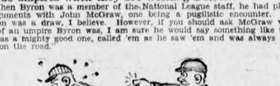
Perhaps the influence of Pat Collins, left, and Joe Dugan, has something to do with the fact that the Boston Braves are leading the parade in the National League. You know, Collins and Dugan are former members of the New York Yankees and are used to playing with a winning ball club. Anyway, the Braves have been going good—wonder of wonders! And here are Collins and Dugan in their pretty new unies.

LAUGHS from the DIAMOND

by Billy Evans

BASEBALL lost a real character when Bill Byron decided to give up umpiring for the less strenuous business of master steamfitter. Byron, by the way, is one of those fellows who never will need a benefit in his behalf. He has invested his savings and profits in Detroit real estate and is comfortably fixed. He still has the old love for the game and always makes it a point to drop in on the American League umpires when they are working Detroit.

When Byron was a member of the National League staff, he had plenty of arguments with John McGraw, one being a pugilistic encounter. The decision was a draw, I believe. However, if you should ask McGraw what kind of an umpire Byron was, I am sure he would say something like this: "He was a mighty good one, called 'em as he saw 'em and was always welcome on the road."



No manager can possibly pay an umpire a greater tribute than to say he likes to have him on the road. In other words, that means he regards the official as anything but a "homer."

I shall never forget an interleague series I worked with Byron in which New York was one of the contending teams. It was a hotly contested affair, featuring many close plays, and, as a result, both of us were having our troubles trying to satisfy the rival players and managers.

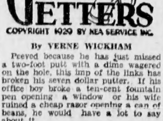
It seems that early in life, Byron, while learning the art of steam fitting, suffered an injury to the first finger on his right hand, if memory serves me correctly, causing it to be amputated at the first joint. Now McGraw has a keen mind and a mighty observing pair of eyes. Possibly he had noticed the loss of part of the finger before and was waiting his opportunity. I am inclined to believe that it was on the spur of the moment, in the midst of a heated argument, that McGraw made the discovery as Byron shook the finger in his face.

Very often when it seems you are on the losing side of an argument, one shifts to personalities in an effort to make a showing. McGraw, realizing he wasn't getting anywhere with his protest, sought to get under Byron's skin with a different line of stuff. As Byron shook his right hand in McGraw's face, the manager of the Giants, with a sneer, remarked:

"I suppose you lost that finger picking pockets."

"No," replied Byron, equal to the occasion. "I wore that finger down pointing it toward the exit signs and usually for your benefit. You are through for the day, and the finger is probably a trifle shorter than when we started."

And Byron pointed majestically toward an exit sign in centre field.



GOLF GOAT GETTERS

Peeved because he has just missed a two-foot putt with a dime wagered on the hole, this imp of the links has broken his seven dollar putter. If his office boy broke a ten-cent fountain pen opening a window or his wife ruined a cheap razor opening a can of beans, he would have a lot to say about it.

Don't form the club-breaking habit! Remember it takes more than low scores to make a golfer.

A golfer in a local club recently broke his club-breaking complex by a very simple method which may be passed on to other slaves of this habit.

He played with women golfers for 30 days. He realized he couldn't cuss and break clubs in front of ladies because it made him appear childish and ungentlemanly. That cured him.

As a result, he again is one of the popular members of the club.

To break a club and lose your temper over one bad shot only causes more bad shots, as a rule. Breaking a club accomplishes nothing; it costs money and makes for unpopularity.

ALFIE PIERCE WILL RETIRE

Veteran Kingston Sport Trainer Through This Fall

KINGSTON, Ont., May 7.—One of the most colorful figures connected with Canadian sport will retire this fall, after 36 years of active service. He is Alfie Pierce, veteran trainer for Queen's university and reports are to the effect that he will only go through one more football season.

Pierce is well known to football followers for he has been conspicuous in every game played by the grid warriors wearing the tri-colors. Besides taking care of the stalwarts, it is also his busniess to see that the mascot does not go astray and any one who companions a live bear cub is an outstanding figure. He will go through his duties this season for the last time, and then will come a less-active mode of living.

When Queen's Beat Yale

The veteran remembers Queen's in the days of Captain Curtiss whose team beat Yale, and he can contrast the gay 90's, when the big university only had three buildings, and a football field, where the present arts building is, to the present, which shows Queen's to be one of the world's finest colleges. In the days of Curtiss there was no athletic board, according to Pierce and the players had to dig up their own uniforms. The great Curtiss went through the historic Yale game with one green and one tri-colored stocking, and in place of cleated football shoes, he wore a pair of canvas sneakers.

In his prime the old trainer was an athlete of great ability, playing nearly all games, but concentrating on lacrosse. This fact is not generally known.

SECOND TRIAL WITH ROBINS

Val Picinich, who was acquired by Brooklyn from Cincinnati recently has played with the Robins before. When he first entered the big leaguer in 1916, he was with the Robins before he joined the Athletics.

Billy Burke is the oldest of three brothers who are golfers. Burke is ranked among the best of the younger pros. Eddie is his assistant at a New York club, and another brother expects to turn pro within a few years.

AS a result of negotiations with the Fort Saskatchewan branch of the Canadian Legion (B. E. S. L.), the Edmonton Olympic Club has been successful in arranging an annual track and field program at Fort Saskatchewan on Victoria Day, May 24.

This meet will be held under the official sanction of the Alberta branch, Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, and the pick of the "simon pure" athletes from Edmonton and outside points are expected to be on hand to compete in the long list of events.

All athletes taking part must be registered as amateurs with the Alberta branch, A.A.U. of C. Registration is free for those under eighteen years of age, and for those eighteen years and over, a fee of fifty cents is charged. Any prospective competitors can register by applying to Roy J Foster, license department, Civic Block, Edmonton.

BEANO WRIGHT FOR HAMILTON

MONTREAL, May 7.—The great back division of the Montreal Football Club—"Beano" Wright, Red Moore and Gordon Perry—will not be playing together as a unit in the Interprovincial Union next fall.

"Beano" Wright, officials of the Montreal Club learned over the weekend, has accepted a position with a Hamilton firm and next season will wear the yellow and black colors of the Hamilton Tigers. The fact of the matter is that Wright is no longer a single man. On a recent trip to his home at Dundas, Ont., he was married. To be near to his parents and the parents of his young wife, he decided to accept the Hamilton position. He will bid Montreal farewell on Tuesday or Wednesday.

Last year, the back division of Bill Hughes' club was considered the best in Canadian football. As running mates, Wright had Red Moore and Gordon Perry. These two stars remain, and will be with the Wheelers in the fall campaign, but a new man will have to be found to fill the boots of "Beano" Wright—not exactly an easy thing to do. Until Wright decided on matrimony, it was thought he would return to Queen's University and complete his course in engineering. He has been employed with the Dominion Bridge Company at Lachine. Wright may return to college at a later date, but right now his thoughts are on his recent marriage and the new position at Hamilton.

Cows in Huddle Fool "Rickey" 5,000 Feet Up

LOOKS LIKE A WRECKED PLANE—WE'D BETTER GO TO THEIR ASSISTANCE!
HAW! HAW! HAW! NOTHING BUT A HERD OF COWS—HA! HA! HA!
EVEN AN "ACE" IS MISTAKEN OCCASIONALLY

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

Eddie Richenbacher, America's ace in the war, told me an unusual story revealing something of what an aviator is up against while trying to make out what is going on beneath him.

Richenbacher went up with a friend in a plane and was cruising around about 5,000 feet up, when they happened to look down and see what looked like another plane in distress or crashed on the ground, and people flocking toward it from all directions.

"Maybe we'd better go down and see if we can be of any help," said Eddie; so they dropped down to about 500 feet elevation. Then they saw instead of a wrecked airplane and a crowd of people, there was only a herd of jersey cows, standing in the form of an airplane, and coming toward them were black angus cows which they had mistaken for automobiles.

"It was the most unusual thing that ever happened to me in the air," said Eddie, who has had plenty of unusual experiences during his air career.

MITT BUSINESS VERY BAD FOR JACK DEMPSEY

Hasn't Landed Single Go For His New York Partners

NEW YORK, May 7.—The boxing industry is virtually at a standstill throughout the country.

Fighters who will fight at a premium and top-notch matches are almost impossible to get at any price. Jack Dempsey hasn't been able to make a single match for the Humbert J. Fugazy-Ed Cole combine.

"I was a pretty good asker in my time," Dempsey said in explaining his failure to land a big bout, "but these fellows have me backed off the boards when it comes to demanding big purses."

New York hasn't seen a real fight since James J. Braddock, hard hitting Jersey City light heavyweight, knocked out Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, March 11.

Disappointing Match

The last important match held in Chicago was the disappointing Tommy Loughran-Mickey Walker light heavyweight bout. Detroit hasn't staged a bout of any consequence since the knock-down-and-drag-out Clay Miller-Tommy Grogan lightweight scrap of several months back. Boston has been depending on Jimmy Maloney, the fat fish monger, and Al Mello, who holds two victories over the welterweight champion, Joe Dundee, in non-title bouts for most of its boxing thrills.

The Mello-Dundee bout in Boston on April 12 was a good fight, but not a great one. The only match of any magnitude held on the far coast recently was the Ace Hudkins-Armand Emanuel bout at Los Angeles April 15.

New York fight fans are looking forward to a worth-while outdoor season with at least two important heavyweight bouts as the big attractions.

Next Important Bout

The next bout of importance here promises to be the Fidel La Barba-Kid Chocolate match at the New York Coliseum, May 21. The New York State Athletic Commission will recognize the winner as bantamweight champion in this state.

Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, will arrive in Montreal, Friday and Madison Square Garden officials expect him to agree to meet Paolino Uzcudun, of Spain, on the milk fund program at Yankee Stadium on June 27.

The winner of the Schmeling-Paolino match will be paired against Jack Sharkey in September. This match may produce the next heavyweight champion.

Other matches planned this summer are Loughran-Braddock, Singer-Chocolate, Pladner-Schwartz, Routis vs. winner of the Singer-Chocolate match.

Three Drawing Cards

The three biggest drawing cards in boxing now are Schmeling, Singer and Chocolate. Schmeling will draw about $200,000 for his match against Paolino. A Schmeling-Sharkey bout might draw another $1,000,000 gate.

Singer has packed Madison Square Garden on the three occasions he has fought there during the winter. Chocolate is a favorite at the smaller clubs where he has never failed to draw a packed audience. He recently drew 15,000 to see him win from Bushy Graham on a foul.

Girls' City Baseball League Meets Tomorrow

A meeting of the Girls' Senior City Baseball League will be held in the Y. W. C. A. on Wednesday evening starting at 8 o'clock. While there were only two teams operating in the league last year, it is quite likely that four clubs will form the loop this year. All those interested are invited to attend the meeting.

BASS GETS DECISION

NEW YORK, May 7.—Benny Bass, Philadelphia, featherweight contender pounded an easy decision victory over Peter Mack of Jersey City, in a 10 round match at the St. Nicholas Arena last night.

BOXING MEETING

There will be a meeting of the Edmonton Amateur Boxing Association in the Memorial Hall tonight at eight o'clock sharp. All members of the executive are asked to be on hand as all of the business of the association will be wound up.

PLAYED BASEBALL 33 YEARS

After playing semi-pro baseball in Cincinnati for 33 years, Leonard "Pop" Simms recently said he was through.

The earliest known mechanical toy dates back to about 2000 B.C., and is of Egyptian origin.

The average haul for a robbery in 1927 was $30.75, it is estimated by Warden Lawes of Sing Sing prison.

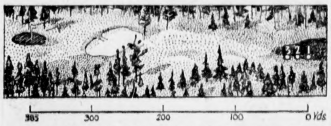
No. 1 Hole—385 yards, Par 4.



Jasper, Alberta, will be the venue of the Canadian Amateur Championships of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, August 19th to 24th, this year. The Jasper Park Lodge course par of 72 has not yet been made by an amateur player, and many reputations are likely to be shattered in the tournament this summer. It is expected that the course, which has been described by experts as the finest on the continent, will attract many of the outstanding players of North America.

The photograph shows the first hole of the Jasper Park Lodge course as seen from the tee. Below is a plan of the first hole with the yardages to scale marked below it. Practically every hole has three tees, but in the amateur championships all play will be from tee No. 1.

Co-incident with the Canadian Amateur Tournament, the Western Canada Amateur will also be played over the Jasper Park Lodge course.

SOCCER BODY PLANNING FOR SCHOOL MATCH

Calgary Youngsters Here Saturday for Game With Bennett

Considerable business of a routine nature, as well as a number of important matters, were handled at the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Football Association held in the Y. M. C. A. last night.

Discussion of plans for the staging of the game here Saturday for the provincial public school soccer championship, between Bennett School, of this city, and Victoria Prevocational School, of Calgary, occupied a lot of the council's attention.

It was announced that the Calgary team would leave Friday night and arrive here Saturday morning, staying at the Corona Hotel while in the city. They will be guests at the Vets-Martin game between the Canadian Legion and the Radials that night and will probably be guests at a banquet following the game. The council will meet Thursday evening to decide on a program of entertainment for the day.

Want Colors Changed

W. Moffatt and T. Braid, comprising a delegation from the Canadian National first division club, asked permission of the council to have their colors changed, as they are getting the colors used by C. N. R. teams all over the system, which are blue, gold and black, with white shorts. This permission was granted and it is possible that the team will be sporting the new colors in their game against the Canadian Legion tomorrow night.

Preliminary arrangements for the local program of entertainment for the touring Welsh team were talked over and it is likely that these will definitely be decided upon by the end of the week.

Billy Griffiths was named referee of the inter-city school game on Saturday, while Jack Thomson will referee the Vets-Martin game that night. Griffiths was also appointed referee for the clash between the Callies and C. N. R. on May 15.

SUSPEND FOUR ALTA. BOXERS

Southern Athletes Are In Bad Graces of The Amateur Union

According to an announcement made last night by R. J. Foster, secretary-treasurer of the Alberta branch, Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, four Alberta amateur boxers have been suspended by the registration committee for competing in professional tournaments during March and April of this year.

The athletes are: Curtis Elleart Rolla Harris and Warren Harris, all of Magrath, Alta., and Floyd Winger Cardston, who was runner-up in the 147 pound open event at the provincial boxing finals held at Calgary April 1 and 2.

Mr. Foster stated that there were further cases to be dealt with, and that an announcement would be forthcoming very shortly.

WHEAT SLUMPS IN WINNIPEG; CLOSE IS LOW

Weakness in Other Markets and Freight Cut Sends Prices Down

By James Richardson & Sons, Ltd.

WINNIPEG, May 7—Weakness at Liverpool and Chicago and proposed reduction of grain rates on United States railways sent the local wheat market scurrying to lower levels today, values at one period being down 9⅛ cents below yesterday's close. Reactions occurred from the low points, but the support was quite inadequate and the market closed 6 to 7 cents lower for the day.

May wheat sold as low as 111¼; July, 112¾ and October 114.

Scenes bordering on panic occurred as traders flooded the pit with wheat to sell.

Cash wheat trading was slow and the spreads on the various grades were unchanged to ⅛c higher.

Rye declined sharply in sympathy with wheat, but oats and barley held steady. Flax held unchanged in a dull market.

Winnipeg Grain Letter

By James Richardson & Sons Ltd.

WINNIPEG, May 7.—Wheat registered most drastic decline in years today, with forced liquidation in evidence and only indifferent support. Declines of over [illegible] cents were shown at one time, and there was only a moderate rally at the close. Reports of freight rate reductions in the United States have apparently demoralized foreign markets, and emphasized to the world a bearish cash situation now prevailing on this continent. Canadian transportation channels are blocked from Fort William to the Atlantic, with no immediate relief in sight, and this is interfering with shipping and export business. The decline of the past few days at Liverpool has been partly caused by cheaper offerings in anticipation of those freight rate deductions. Even today's drastic decline only brought in moderate export business, and the buying today was difficult to trace. Liquidation, however, appears to have been very complete and while the market may require some time to digest the wheat loaded on it today, present prices should attract approved support.

Flash—Wheat—Weakness in Winnipeg renewed selling here. On profit taking on the decline by shorts.

WINNIPEG, May 7—Flash—Practically nothing done in export over week-end and our holiday demand for cash wheat was not at all urgent. WALL STREET STILL STRONG; MONEY SCARCE

Increase in Call Rates Fails to Send Stock Prices Down

By Stanley W. Prenosil,
Associated Press Financial Editor

NEW YORK, May 7—The stock market gave an impressive demonstration of strength today in the face of unusually high call money rates. Prices faltered somewhat at the opening when it became evident that the supply of call money available was low but a rally set in soon after the renewal rate had been fixed at 14 per cent, and continued throughout the early afternoon trading.

International Telepjhone rose 10 points to a new top at 187⅝.

Such issues as Congoleum, Great Western Sugar, Freeport Texas, Krueger and Etoll, and Western Electrical Instrument selling between $20 and $50 a share, changed hands in rather large volume. Pure Oil touched a new high at 30⅛, one block of shares changing hands at 30.

Sparks Withington extended its gain to nearly 10 points by touching a new high at 218 in the early afternoon. By-Products Coke and Columbia Carbon also moved into new high ground. United Aircraft after dipping 4 points at 151, rallied to 161¾, or within a fraction of the year's high.

The close was irregular.

Total sales approximated 3,200,000 shares.

New York Letter

By James Richardson & Sons

NEW YORK, May 7.—The factor which became prominent in the money market just a week ago, the withdrawal of funds by foreign institutions, continued to maintain and cause advance in the call money rate with the result that the ease which was expected to develop in the early part of this week has been temporarily postponed. With the market at a new high record, it was not expected that this disappointment in the money market should happen. The result thus far is reaction confined almost to those issues which established new high records last week or at least prices which represented the highest price which the issues have recorded since the March break. Just when all the accommodation which is being sought would be provided for sufficiently to permit the call rate to ease is impossible to estimate. Until then it is irregular. Meantime, the irregularity should be used for buying, particularly in the oil, rail and public utilities groups.

Latest News From Alberta Oil Fields

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin
By Staff Correspondent

CALGARY, May 7.—Calmont No. 1 for the third time in succession blew a large amount of wet gas yesterday afternoon for about an hour, the estimated production being 80 barrels of naphtha when the gas flow shut off. J. R. Walling stated last night that he expected the well to be producing steadily in a few days. The large quantity of naphtha produced during the short period that the well was blowing was attributed to accumulation underneath the lime bridge.

Calmont No. 2—The rotary drill was moved on the Dallas lease yesterday and will be rigged up immediately, so that the well can be spudded in during the next two weeks. The rotary drill for No. 3 will be moved out today. This well will be spudded in, in a few days.

New Record—A new record was made in deliveries of oil from Turner Valley during April to the two Calgary refineries. The total of the previous month was passed by approximately 12,500 barrels. The total deliveries for the month were 69,207 barrels.

Devenish No. 2 was reported yesterday to be full of oil, the well having been drilled to 22 feet in the sand. It was also stated that tankage amounting to 750 barrels was practically filled, and a large quantity of oil had been shipped to the Imperial refinery at Calgary for test purposes. The well may be put on the pump today.

McDougall-Segur No. 2, which is now giving about [illegible] barrels of naphtha a day, will be drilled deeper unless the amount of oil is increased considerably, it was stated last evening by Fred M. rahant, president of the company. The well produced 60 barrels a day at first, but during the last 24 hours, has increased to 76 barrels. If drilling deeper is decided on a new string of 4-inch tools will be used against the 11,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day now obtained. At present the well is only drilled three feet into the producing horizon.

Ghost River—A test of Ghost River, northwest of Cochrane will be made this summer when three wells will be drilled by the Hudson's Bay-Marland Oil company, the Burdyck syndicate of Vancouver and the Rice-Jones syndicate of Calgary.

Sentinel Oils, which have drilled to a depth of 4650 feet in the new valley, east of Turner Valley is understood to have completed financing arrangements in Toronto. It is planned to continue drilling the well which is now a short distance above the McDougall-Segur sands, in the Blairmore formation.

Holding 279 acres on structure in Turner Valley subject to one-eighth royalty by Turner Valley Oil Co., Freehold Oil Corporation Limited is one of the largest independent companies operating in this famous Alberta oil field.

The company's No. 1 well on their holdings in the northern section of the field is now down more than 2300 feet. This section of Turner Valley is considered by experts to be one of the best potential districts in the world.

The company expects to strike the limestone production horizon at about 4300 feet. This depth is about 1000 feet shallower than the production horizon in the central and southern sections of the field, and represents a proportionate saving in the cost of bringing a well into production.

We unreservedly recommend purchase of Freehold stock at current market prices as a very attractive oil speculation.

MARKETS

Bliss Letter

By James Richardson & Sons

NEW YORK, May 7.—After the extended rise in numerous issues, yesterday's money stringency might have found the market in a weaker technical position than actually appeared to be the case. The selling could hardly be described as insistent and to use it seemed to lack conviction, being more of the tentative variety, having as a background the desire to test the position of the active stocks. We think that this test established the fact that resistance had not weakened. Just before the close yesterday reports came from reliable sources to the effect that money at 14 per cent probably represented the peak for the present at least and that lower rates could be anticipated, in the immediate future. The development of easier rates would, we think, lead to resumption of the advance, while the forward movement of the market was checked yesterday. We do not believe that it has been ended. While Motor stocks have been rather heavy of late, we feel that some of the companies are in an excellent position and would consider Packard, Hudson and General Motors as probably the three most attractive issues.

Montreal Noon Letter

By James Richardson & Sons

MONTREAL, May 7. — International Nickel and razilian Traction continued to dominate local trading. International Nickel opened quite strong at 54⅛ in Montreal and 54 in New York, but appeared to be called upon to absorb a fair amount of profit-taking, which it did without suffering any very substantial recession, the close locally being 53¼, and in New York 52⅝. Reports of a large interest being shown in International Nickel in New York continued and the street believes that sooner or later, the recent accumulation for New York and London account will be reflected marketwise.

Brazilian was a little firmer, but scattered selling persisted and prices receded moderately. Canada Paper enjoyed another burst of activity, advancing to 32¼ before the rise was checked by realizing. There was no special news current to account for this activity nor to account for the firmer prices shown in other newsprints. The public, however, are looking forward to a series of paper mergers later on with the production of newsprint becoming centralized in a smaller number of large units.

Wall Street Journal

By James Richardson & Sons

NEW YORK, May 7—Money was the dominant factor in the day's trading session. Renewal rate of 10 per cent. being followed by successive advances until 14 per cent. for call loans was established late in the day, with money firm at that level. Though such a firmness had been anticipated it was rather freely predicted in brokerage house gossip. This event brought on a considerable wave of selling, resulting in fairly substantial price recessions in leading issues. Continuation of such a firm condition for call loans at a period of unusual seasonal ease undoubtedly meant that the brake of the stock market credit supply was still being applied. The first wave of selling was pretty well absorbed and trading diminished considerably. This was followed by a sharp forward movement in the oil group which put such representative issues as Standard Oils of New Jersey and California at new top prices. The aviation issues were featured likewise, due to prominence in that industry expected to come now that the season for spectacular long-distance flights is at hand. Late in the day selling again developed on further ease in money.
